ANNA DAY IS REAL ARTIST

LEADING ROLE IN COMING DRAMA WILL BE TAKEN.

Tomorrow Night's Attraction at Steward's Will Be Attractive.

The announcement is made that Miss Anna Day, the sterling American actress, and her supporting cast of 20 players, will visit this city for an engagement of one night at the Steward theatre in that fine old drama, "When Knighthood Was in Flower." The play was dramatized some seasons ago by Paul Kester, the well known American playwright, from Charles Major's romance of chivalry, and was the vehicle whereby Miss Julia Marlowe has achieved one of her greatest stage triumphs.

This season William K. Sparks secured the original Marlowe scenery, costumes and properties, and it is said that the play this season is being given the most elaborate stage setting since it began its career as a road company, after Julia Marlowe had relinquished her rights to it. One thing is certain, Miss Day's manager, Mr. Sparks, has spared neither money nor pains to give the theatre goers their money's worth.

A word about Miss Day would not be amiss. She has been given a tour this season that will take in all the principal cities of Canada and the United States. In many of these cities she has been seen before, where her charming personality had made for her many warm and true friends among the theatre goers. This is Miss Day's third season in the character of Mary Tudor, having been one year under the management of Ernest Shipman and the previous season with F. I. Persoy. This season Miss Day comes under the personal direction of William K. Sparks, whose contract with Miss Day is for five years, and during that time she is to be supplied with two new plays.

Miss Day has, by hard work, self-sacrifice and real ability, climbed the ladder. Her growth professionally has been steady but sure. This season in "When Knighthood Was in Flower" she will be seen at her zenith.

NOTICE TO VOTERS.

I hereby announce my candidacy for recorder of the city of La Grande. Thanking the public for their support on December 11th, I am, Yours truly, C. M. HUMPHREYS.

Elaborate stage settings are features of tomorrow night's show—"When Knighthood Was in Flower."

R. CARPENTER FUNERAL HELD

REMAINS LAID AWAY THIS AFTERNOON.

Details of His Death Told by Pendleton Paper—Many Friends Here

Remains of Engineer Ray Carpenter who was asphyxiated at Dayton last week, were laid away this afternoon with services at the Christian church. The widow and four children and other relatives were shown sympathy from the many friends of the Carpenter family by a large attendance at the services. Further particulars about Mr. Carpenter's death are contained in the Pendleton East Oregonian of yesterday:

"Consigned to La Grande, where it will be interred, the body of Ray Carpenter, formerly engineer on the motor car between this city and Umatilla, who met death by asphyxiation at Dayton last Thursday night, passed through Pendleton yesterday.

"According to a dispatch from Dayton, Carpenter, who was an expert motor car machinist, and who had been sent into eastern Washington to make repairs on cars there, had volunteered to stand watch in the Dayton-Walla Walla car when the regular watchman reported in sick. During cold weather it is necessary to start the engines several times during the night to keep them from freezing. Carpenter had evidently started the engines and then dozed off to sleep. The crew found the car locked in the morning and the machinist inside dead. The engine had run until it had burned out the bearings. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict that death was due to asphyxiation from the gas fumes in the engine room.

"The dead man lived in Pendleton for several months when he was motorman on the local car and has a host of friends here who were shocked to learn of his tragic death. He was engineer on the motor car at the time of its collision with a freight train and shortly afterward went to work in the car shops at Albina. He leaves a wife and four children in La Grande."
