ANNUAL HONORS PAID TO ELKS

C. W. FULTON PRINCIPAL SPEAKER YESTERDAY.

Musical Numbers Exceptionally Fine and Services Well Attended.

The annual memorial services of the Elks lodge occurred yesterday and the home of that organization was filled with La Grande people to hear the impressive service which has grown to be recognized as one of the chief memorial occasions of the year. The hall's interior was decorated properly and cut flowers were plentiful.

The members of the order gathered in the club rooms and at the appointed hour, marched double file down the stairway to the auditorium, taking their places at the sides of the hall. Exalted Ruler H. J. Ritter opened the services with ritualistic form, assisted by the subordinate officials. Then followed special music. H. E. Coolidge delivered the eulogy to the dead brother calling their names, the date of birth and the date of death. After the list of departed ones had been read the speaker dwelt for several minutes on their virtues, calling attention to the Elks fraternity which never forgets a member he is living or dead.

Hon. Charles W. Fulton, ex-senator of Oregon, was present from Portland and delivered the memorial address. With his splendid delivery, his carefully worded sentences, his convincing argument he took his audience through the early history of the Elks order, telling how it had been misunderstood until recent years in that many good citizens had formed an opinion that the order was really an influence for evil rather than good. He attributed this in a measure to some of the members who, by their methods had caused such an opinion to crystallize in the public mind.

"But," continued the speaker, "I am proud to tell you today that throughout the entire union no lodge has higher standing for patriotism, for loyalty to country, for brotherly love, for its unbounded charity than has the B. P. O. E."

He cautioned every member to keep

In mind the obligation taken at the altar, to be mindful of the lodge's teachings thereby living the clean, upright moral life which means so much not only to the individual but to the community as well. Dwelling upon the monument one builds to his own memory the senator made it plain how necessary it is for the individual to stand on his own merits, how essential it is for the young man to realize this early in life so that he may take advantage of the knowledge. "Shafts of granite may rise to mark the resting places of men," said the speaker. "They may stand for ages but finally time will obliterate them. No physical monument erected can withstand the battlements of nature, but such monuments, no matter how large and how massive, count for little as compared with the individual record left by the man who sleeps beneath the sod. Live so that you will have that lasting monument that monument which endures as long as man walks the earth."

Every member of the audience was deeply impressed by the speaker. It was considered a sermon of eloquence a lecture filled with the best advice and through it all reflected back and forth was the teaching, the solemn and firm admonition which every Elk receives upon his initiation to the order. WEBB PORTRAIT HANGS

Mr. Webb was initiated into Shelby lodge No. 16, Shelby, Mo., in 1855. In the organization of the La Grande lodge, No. 16, he was charter member and the first noble grand. At that time the lodge home was in the small building now standing on C street in South La Grande. The lodge was housed there for a number of years. Later he took his membership card to the Eureka lodge, No. 32, at Pendleton where he is still a member. Mr. Webb has been an Odd Fellow of good standing for 56 years. Last year Mr. Webb was presented with a 55-year veteran jewel by the members of his own lodge at Pendleton.

Roll call night in Odd Fellowship means that every member is due to send a word of greeting or be present in person--100 were there in person and from remote corners of the world came letters of greeting from absent members. The La Grande lodge has members scattered over the entire world, and on roll call night all these are heard from. Over 20 such letters were read at the roll call.

Ben Grandy, a pioneer member of the lodge was one of the many important speakers heard. In an animated address he related many touching and humorous incidents connected with the lodge in its early career here. A banquet followed and more one of the first moves by Mayor Blankenburg. It is declared by experts that nearly $1,000,000 a year can be saved speeches were heard. All in all it was a night long to be remembered, historically, socially and fraternally.

Reform Mayor Takes Office.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 4.--Rudolph Blankenburg, "the war horse of reform," was installed as mayor of Philadelphia today. The ceremony took place in the common council chamber and was witnessed by a throng as large as the chamber would hold. Coincidentally the other city officials elected last month resumed their duties.

With the outgoing of John E. Reburn and the assumption of office by Mayor Blankenburg, a new regime in city governmental affairs in the Quaker city was inaugurated. The election month was the culmination of years of persistent effort on the part of the republican reform forces to overthrow the republican organization that has controlled all the city offices and managed municipal affairs in a manner to invite not only adverse criticism but open charges of inefficiency and graft.

Curtailment of the city's expenses by saving in salaries and the abolition of certain bureaus is expected to be dent of the American Federation of Labor, in admitting that the McNamara's confessions hurt the unions with the people. Asked what the union heads would do to exonerate labor, he said:

MANY HORSES BURNED.

United States Express Office Is Destroyed and Records Gone.

Jersey City, Dec. 4.--Several hundred horses suffocated in a fire which destroyed the United States Express company's main building here today. The company's records since the organization are believed to be lost. The property loss is approximately a million. Fred Ockey, the night watchman, is missing.

Gompers Is Explicit.

New York, Dec. 14.--"If necessary we can get along without the public's support," said Samuel Gompers, presi-

"We know what we shall do; we are going to do it now. Those who should know about it do know. To those whose business it doesn't affect, they haven't a word to say."

Birth Record.

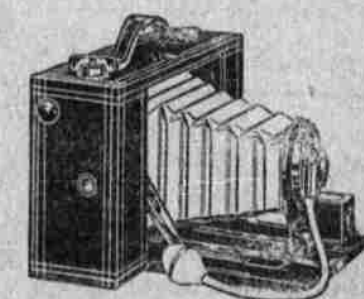

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Sargent December 2, an 8-pound son.
