SHADOWS SEEN BY GROUNDHOG

SECOND WINTER BOUND TO COME SAYS ADAGE.

Sun Shines Brightly and Ground Hog Boots Back to Quarters.

"This is Candlemas day; and on Candlemas day, if the sun appear, There'll be two winters in the year."

There will be, Mr. Ground Hog no doubt peeps out early in the morning and if he did today he scooted back quickly for during the morning and much of the forenoon the sun shone brightly. There will be another winter if the old superstition holds good for Candlemas day, in popular parlance, is nothing more nor less than "ground hog day"; "ground hog day" from the ranges of Hudson Bay to the pines of Carolina and from New England to California. According to the popular fable if Brer Arctomys Monax, the ground hog, creeps out of his hole between sunrise and high noon this day and sees its shadow outlined by the sunshine, the little animal promptly scampers back into its aperture and there remains for six weeks more. But if he fails to see his shadow, according to popular tradition, it is a sure sign that winter is practically over and there will be an early spring.

There is some dispute as to the origin of Candlemas day, but most authorities are agreed that this ecclesiastical festival was instituted by Pope Gelasius in the year of 492 in commemoration of the presentation of Christ in the temple and of the purification of the Virgin Mary. February denotes purification and in this month the Romans performed the ceremony of purification of the people. When the church changed this feast of Prosperine, as it was called by the Romans, it retained the procession feature and associated the occasion with the purification of the Virgin.

The festival is celebrated throughout the Christian world annually on February 2, and derives its name from the fact that in the Roman Catholic churches candles are blessed on this day and carried in procession in commemoration of the words of Simeon spoken of the infant Christ, "A Light to Lighten the Gentiles."

More For Less

Time was when electric lights were regarded as a luxury for the rich and the well-to-do.

The first electric lights, while a luxury and far superior to any lights then known, were very crude compared to the modern electric lights.

Wonderful progress has been made in electric lighting within the past five years—new inventions and discoveries have not only emphasized its great superiority, but have vastly increased uses and actually reduced its cost.

Rates are now so reasonable that no one need hesitate at the cost end, once you have used electricity, you will never be satisfied with anything else. For rates and information, phone Main 34.
