other La Grande player, elicited rings of applause by her gritty defense and aggressiveness. It was her debut to "varsity" basketball and she did it well. Miss Cotner, too, was much smaller than her opponent but recovered the sphere at almost every opportunity.

The rest of the La Grande players were more evenly matched as to size, but far superior in agility and skill. Miss Bacon, like Miss King, forestalled a single field basket from her opponent, and fed the ball to the forwards with almost monotonous regularity. Miss Topp and Miss Blasse dropped the pellet into the wicket with the regularity of veterans and both displayed gift-edged "inside" basketball sense in their combination play and shooting. "Oetie" Esberg and Cecil Bolton officiated.

TEXAS TOMMY AT ARCADE

FAMOUS DANCE TO BE PORTRAYED BY LITTLE RICHARDS.

Team Which Won Popularity Here Some Time Ago, Back in New Role

A matinee performance this afternoon introduced the national-wide famous Texas tommy dance when the Little Richards that held sway in La Grande with the highland fling, clog dancing and similar attractions in La Grande a few years ago, made their first appearance in La Grande for this run. They will be at the Arcade tonight, tomorrow afternoon and night and the same schedule on the following day. The Little Richards were the big attraction in the local vaudeville house a few years ago and are now starring in the Texas tommy, making a sensational success of that noted dance. At Portland, they packed the People's Amusement company houses at every performance. The little folks are fully as clever with the dance which has, in its aggravated form, been the subject of much comment throughout the social circles of the country, as they were with their old-time clog dancing. The type of Texas tommy presented by them is not a few attraction but rather a classical portrayal of the step and has been all the rage in Portland theatres the past week, crowded houses greeting every performance.

LOCAL CO-EDS TRIM VISITORS

Showing vast improvement over their previous games this year, and outclassing Baker completely in every phase of basketball, the La Grande girls' team Saturday night trimmed the visiting town co-ed quintet to the decisive tune of 21 to 1. Uniting their efforts splendidly, and throwing baskets with the accuracy of veterans, guarding like professionals and resorting to consistent team work the La Grande girls quickly caught their stride and rained baskets pretty much at will. The visitors lacked the ability to score from free throws, a fact which kept their score down for they had repeated free throws, of which only one went true. In the same department La Grande was not much more successful. Lolette King and Eva Cotner were the scintillating stars of the game. Both players, although small of stature, abounded in energy and grit, and froze to their opponents from whistle to whistle and Miss King, perhaps more than any

We carry everything which is good in shoe leather, and at all times our prices are reasonable enough taking into consideration the quality of our merchandise and also the workmanship. But now the cuts are so radical, so deep that we are asking in many instances a far lower price than you will pay for the cheap inferior shoe. This is not a talk for advertising purposes. We have the best evidence in the world to back up this statement.
