WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE? (By M. L. Carter.)

The game of life appears to be a puzzling thing to play. When we try to solve the problems that confront us every day; It keeps the people skirmishing For eatables and fire With taxes soaring heavenward,

And food a-getting higher;

The men that pay the taxes, now Are seeking for a plan To better the condition Of the overburdened man. We're to have a farmers' ticket That will cut expenses down But there's rascals in the country Just the same as in the town.

You'll always find a sprinkling In the lead of every mob. A yelling "thief" and "rascal." And a looking for a job; Their talk is patriotic But the boodle is their aim. And they're roasting all the people Who beat 'em in the game.

The farmer crowd will average With others on the road. Th most of them are willing to Assume their share o' load. But remember when a hayseed wants To hold an office down There are rascals in the country Just the same as in the town. M. L. CARTER.

Birth Record.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Fields, an 11¹/₂ pound daughter, today.
