thing I did was to haul out my pencil and start in to figuring. After naming several large items he brightened up and said: 'Suppose we suspend these calculations. After all, I am not in such a bad shape. As a matter of fact, I believe I am square with the world.'

"How do you make that out?" I inquired in some surprise.

"Well, it's this way," he answered. "In thinking the thing over I have reached the conclusion that there are just as many people that I don't owe as that I do, and it seems that this ought to make the balance about right."—Baltimore American

Spokane, Wash., March 11.—John S. Gray of Springdale, Wash., who drafted the charter under which Spokane was incorporated in 1881, when Robert W. Forrest, a native of Pennsylvania, was elected the first mayor on the way east to visit his birthplace and boyhood home in Monroe county, Iowa, after an absence of 41 years.

"I have seen the passing of the frontier days in the northwest," Mr. Gray said in Spokane just before starting for his old home. "It is not now nor never was an Eldorado for the soldier of fortune or the shiftless. Brains and ability count for as much west of the Rocky mountains as anywhere on this continent. It is not the place for drones. The cities are well supplied with clerks, craftsmen and other wage earners, but there is room and need on the farms for 20 times the present population.

than 120,000 at the present time and I think it a conservative statement to predict there will be at least 250,000 when the next census is taken in 1920.

"One of the things that has always impressed me is that the chambers of commerce and allied organizations are devoting so much attention to the outside and tributary districts. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended in developing and settling the farming country in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. That is the proper community spirit. Evidently the business men in the trade centers realize that their successes depend largely upon the development and the prosperity of agriculture, lumbering, mining and water power. The cities will take care of themselves."

Mr. Gray is in comfortable circumstances. He is identified with several industrial projects and is the general manager of the Veteran Mining, Milling and Power company, incorporated in Washington with a capitalization of $1,500,000, every share of which is subscribed.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH.

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Every one who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give every thing he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is commonly caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices, or by lack of tone in the walls of the stomach. The result is that the stomach loses its power to digest food.

We are now able to supply certain missing elements—to help to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to aid in making the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a most dependable remedy for disordered stomachs, indigestion, and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store.

GIRAFRES IN BATTLE.

The Long Necked Animals Wield Their Heads as Weapons.

The giraffe has an original and curious method of fighting. The long necked beast has neither claws nor beak nor sharp teeth with which to defend or attack, so when it is out of temper with one of its own kind it does not fly in the face of provocation by trying to disembowel its adversary, as a tiger might, or toss it, as a rhinoceros would.

On the contrary, the giraffe, knowing that it has been provided by nature with a long and pliable neck, terminating in a very solid head, uses the upper part of itself like a fall and, swinging its neck round and round in a way that does immense credit to its organization, brings its head down at each swing with a thump on its adversary.

The other combatant adopts precisely the same tactics, and the two animals, planting themselves as firmly as possible by stretching out on all four legs to the utmost, stand opposite each other, hammering with their heads until one or the other has had enough.

The head of the giraffe is furnished with two stumpy, horn-like processes, so that the animals when at this hammer and tongs method of warfare remind the spectator somewhat of two ancient warriors thumping each other with the spiked balls they used to carry for that purpose at the end of chains. Harper's Weekly.

The Triple Plume.

The three feathers of the Prince of Wales, with the German motto, 'Ich Dien' ('I serve'), are supposed to be the arms of the blind king of Bohemia, whom Edward III's son, the Black Prince, overcame at Cressy. The captor, it will be remembered, waited in his own tent upon his captive; hence a special significance to the words "I serve." In this, however, we have a story that history refuses to accept. The triple plume, indeed, as well as feathers of various numbers, came into general use about the time of Edward III. But it was not unknown before that time, and even at that time it was not the distinctive cognizance of the Prince of Wales. Other members of the royal family bore it as well as he. Not till the reign of Henry VII. was the triple plume within a coronet restricted to the eldest son of the sovereign.—St. Louis Republic.

The Horse.

The reins may guide the horse, the bit may inspire him by its careful manipulation and the whip may urge him forward to greater ambition, but the human voice is far more potent than all these agencies. Its assuring tones will more quickly dispel his fright, its sharp, clear, electric commands will more thoroughly arouse his ambition and its gentle, kindly praises will more completely encourage the intelligent road horse than the united force of the bit and reins and the lash. No animal in domestic use more readily responds to the power of kindness than the road horse.—Exchange.

aching back?

How few know the cause?
If it hurts to stoop or lift—
If you suffer sudden, darting pains—
If you are weak, lame and tired
Suspect your kidneys.

Watch for nature's signal.
The first sign may be headache or frequent urination,
dizziness,
sweaty, painful, or too frequent urination,
Nervousness or a constant, dead-tired feeling.

THE MILLENNIAL DAWN.

Just now there seems to be a fad
For writing "po-et-re"
The object, which is clearly shown,
Is plain for one to see.

It's an office with a "sal-er-a"
A rocking chair and desk,
Recuperating aspirations
For a farmer who wants rest.

Some want to go to congress—
Some to the senate house,
Some to the sheriff's office,
And some where others brotse

What they serve us any better?
Than those who tried in vain?
Improvement's what is needed
In officials, for much gain.

Change the system Mr Farmer,
And we're with you in a plan
That will make the people notice,
And put grafting on the wane.

We have seen some wise old farmers
In the senate and the house,
And have noticed that their game
Was the same as Hans, and Clouse.

If you say you'll cut the tariff out,
On wool, cotton, beef and trout,
And join the socialist "partie,"
We'll show them all the route.

What we need is legislation,
That will treat all just alike,
Whether it be Tom, Dick, or Harry,
John D., Morgan, Gould, or Mike.

Then cut out the profit system,
Give them what they earn
Treat them with love and kindness,
Not bayonets, guns, clubs, and spurn

The Millennial day is dawning
When this will come about,
And all the capitalists' system
Will have been put to rout.
