Not For the Plumes. The ancient mariner had shot the albatross.

"Well, what of it?" he said brazenly. "I did it to oblige Sam Coleridge. I wasn't going to stand here and see a great poem knocked into a cocked hat for lack of incident."

Which seems to show that occasionally it is necessary for somebody to furnish the frightful example.—Chicago Tribune.

No Excuse.

Of the diplomatic circle is a delightful woman whose English is still French. She was urging an officer of the navy to attend a ball, the invitation to which he had already declined.

"I can't," he protested. "I have burned my bridges behind me."

"Oh," she replied. "I will lend you some of Henri's."—Exchange.

No Use.

"Porter, is my berth made up?" asked the man in the smoking compartment.

"Ah don't know, suh."

"Well, find out and make it up if it is not already made up."

"Can't do that, suh; your berth is on the second section of this train, suh."

Getting Even.

J. Henry Peck emerged from the voting booth with a triumphant smile.

"This equal rights stunt is a great business," he remarked to a friend. Then, glancing around carefully and drawing nearer, he whispered, "I voted against my wife!"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Young Napoleon of Finance.

"Why, Willie, where did you get all that money?" "Well, ma, when you sent me to the dentist this morning I charged the gang 10 cents apiece to see me get the tooth pulled."—Judge.

A Little Reminder.

Mr. Newgrich (who has at last maneuvered his ruby ring under the eyes of the great foreign banker)—Ah, baron, I see you've at last noticed my beautiful rubies!

The Baron (sadly)—Ach, yes. Day make me think of home. I haf a mantlepiece of dem dere.—Sketch.
