CHILDREN WHO LABOR

Aracade Theatre Presents Film Dealing With Child Labor Problems.

This picture was written by Ethel Browning. Many of its scenes as produced and acted are very artistic; but sincerity glows in every one of its scenes. The picture's life comes from the fact that in every appeal that it makes to the heart that it is absolutely probable. It rings true to human life. To the minister we will say, "Here is a chance to give your congregation and Sunday school a sermon that is worth while." To the principals of school we will say, "Here is education in contemporary conditions for your pupils." And to the public we will say, "If you see this picture you will be enthusiastic for child labor reform and also for moving pictures because they can show you these things," said Manager George today in announcing the film. "We feel that we cannot urge too strongly that the public attend this performance."
