COCHRAN LEADING IN WALLOWA.

(Edit. in Enterprise Record-Chieflet.)
Among the candidates for the lower house of congress, the race so far as Wallowa county is concerned, appears to have narrowed down to a contest between Geo. T. Cochran, W. R. Ellis and N. J. Sinsott, the two first named probably in the lead. C. E. Roosevelt and John P. Rusk have fallen behind in the race.

COCHRAN LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATE

(Editorial in Union Scout.)
As George T. Cochran is a native of Union county it seems no more than fair for him to receive the big vote at the republican primaries. The question of ability is not greatly at stake among the different candidates.

Mr. Cochran is as able to represent the second district as any of the others in the field and will give to his native section the benefit it deserves.

His legal ability is unquestioned. His character and integrity are without stain.

His location is central. This is not saying that he is the only man in the district capable of representing it but that he is the logical candidate for Union county voters.

Island City, April 13.—(Special) — On Friday the Epworth League gave a very unique social. It was unusual from several standpoints. After some visiting the three captains got together and selected their team-mates for an indoor track meet. The people present were divided into three groups. Each group represented a college. Yutaka Minakuchi—Alex Robertson, captain; Siwash, L.—Wilbur Zurbrick, captain; Rodunk Center—Lyle Kiddie, captain.

The races and other events were most interesting and exciting. Each winner received a prize; among the prizes were several very neat leather medals. The winners of the relay were presented with a beautiful silver (tin) cup. The University of Yutaka Minakuchi won the meet, Siwash came second and Rodunk Center was third.

Supper was then announced and the Yutaka Minakuchi again won by selling the most ice cream and cake. The other booths had pie and punch, sandwiches and coffee.

The whole affair was most enjoyable to those who attended.

Following is the list of events and the winners:

The meeting of Lyle Tuesday Musical this week was a very successful one. The study, "Musical Form" was handled in a masterly way. Mrs. Birnie and Mrs. C. Scriber were leaders for the afternoon. Mrs. Carlock gave a concise and comprehensive discussion of the fugue form, illustrating by a rendition of a Bach fugue. The other forms of musical composition were treated briefly by the leaders of the day. A better understanding was made possible by a gavotte played by Miss Young and a Sarabande by Mrs. Birnie.

The next meeting of the musicale will be held at the club's new home, Honan hall. The study will be the opera, under the direction of Mrs. Upton and Miss Carrie Hunter.

bed by a burglar with whom she alleged to have had an encounter.

Detectives visited and searched the house shortly after the murder and found hidden behind the bath tub and wrapped in a piece of cotton cloth a revolver with one empty and several loaded shells, the calibre of which corresponded with the size of the bullet found in Quinn's breast. It was ascertained that the revolver was the property of J. W. Miller, a roomer in the house of the Quinns. Miller testified during the inquest that a day or so before the murder he missed the revolver which he always kept in his bureau drawer. He spoke to Mrs. Quinn about it and she requested him not to say anything about it to her husband. She offered to pay for the gun, in case it should not be found again. Mrs. Quinn was arrested on suspicion and, after the coroner's jury had given a formal verdict charging her with having shot her husband, she was taken to the Hyde Park police station. Later she was indicted by the grand jury and her case set for next Monday.

The past history of Mrs. Quinn, as ascertained by the efforts of the police and as it will be presented at the trial, was replete with tragedy. Mrs. Quinn was formerly Jennie Taylor and it is believed, was born in London, Ont. She was a handsome and unusually attractive girl and had many suitors. She entered upon her first recorded matrimonial venture on October 23, 1883, when she married John McDonald, a wealthy resident of London, Ont. After a few years McDonald and his wife removed to Jackson, Mich., where a daughter, Pearl McDonald, was born to them. While living in Jackson, Mrs. McDonald frequently visited her sister, Mrs. Alice Sparks, who was housekeeper for Warren Thorpe, a wealthy farmer near Jackson. There she met Thorpe, who became quite fascinated by the handsome Mrs. McDonald.

McDonald suddenly died on September 23, 1901, and as he had been a drinking man it was readily believed that he had died from "alcoholic poisoning," as his widow asserted. About one month after the death of McDonald his widow married Thorpe, who had several grown-up children from a former marriage. The marriage, it seems, was not very happy and violent quarrels were frequently the order of the day. One Sunday morning in June, 1903, Thorpe was shot while sitting on his bed, engaged in lacing his shoes. When arrested on suspicion, Mrs. Thorpe stated that her husband had committed suicide. Although there were grave doubts concerning the truth of her statement there was no positive evidence against her and she was acquitted. It was ascertained since then, that on the same morning Thorpe intended to visit one of his married sons with the intention of deeding to him a 160 acre farm.

After Thorpe's death his widow went to Kalamazoo where she became acquainted with John M. Quinn, who shortly after became her third husband. It is stated that the accused woman inherited considerable property from her first and her second husband and is quite wealthy. It is believed that Elmer Thorpe, a son of
