How Malta Became European.
Malta underwent a geographical as well as a political change through its acquisition by England in 1814. It had always been regarded as part of Africa, to which it seemed to belong both from topography and language. After its annexation, however, it was discovered that the garrison was entitled to the higher pay granted to troops employed out of Europe and was therefore more privileged than the soldiers in the Ionian Islands. To remedy this parliament passed an act decreeing that so far as pay went Malta should be regarded as part of Europe. It used to be a joke that Malta had become European by act of parliament, and the jest soon became a reality.—London Standard

The Baldheaded Eagle.

The staid, dignified and homely bald-headed eagle, the glorious emblem of the American republic, mates but once and lives with his one mate until he or she dies. If left a widower—even a young widower—the baldheaded eagle never mates again. He remains alone and disconsolate in the nest on the rocky crag or in the branches of a tall pine that formed his domicile while his mate was alive. No other female eagle can tempt him to forsake his disconsolate life.

"I always was unlucky," he said, with a weary sigh.

"What's the matter now, old man?" his friend asked.

"I've spent over $500 on havin' my boy taught to play the fiddle, and now his hair's all comin' out."—Chicago Record-Herald

"TAKING THE RISK"

A man said to an Idaho State Life agent the other day when insurance was offered him for the protection of his wife and children, "I'll take the risk." Have you ever heard a man say that, and if you have, didn't it make you mad? He take the risk, indeed! It's the wife and little ones, who have a right to look to him for SURE protection, who take the risk. And he is superlatively selfish and mean to make them do it. The only risk that a dying man takes is of future torment and the Insurance Company won't insure against that.

THE IDAHO STATE LIFE insures against a loss that is certain to occur, and just remember when a life agent comes to you, that you will some day be dead. The only uncertain thing about life is when it will end. There is one dead sure thing about it, though, and that is that when you die if your assets are less than your liabilities, and you are not insured, somebody is going to suffer. You can't insure against death, but you can insure against some of the effects of it. Another thing, with a TWENTY PAYMENT LIFE or a TWENTY YEAR ENDOWMENT you are only laying away a little each year against old age, and getting the insurance besides.
