Iron Where It's Cool

Don't do your ironing in a hot kitchen; use an electric iron and iron in the coolest room in the house. Wherever there is a light socket, you can use an electric iron.

You will be able to do your ironing in about half the time it takes now, for you don't have to change irons or wait for them to heat. Your clothes will look better too, for there's less likelihood of scorching them.

Another thing: You'll find it costs less to heat an electric iron than the old fashioned kind. So everything is in favor of the woman who irons with electricity.

We keep all sizes and styles of electric irons constantly on hand, and you will find our prices very modest.
