

LOCAL GIRL GUEST OF TAFT AND ELBERT HUBBARD ON TRIP

...of much publicity, the guest of the president and men of renown such as Elbert Hubbard, visiting cities from coast to coast, Miss Lottie Jones, daughter of Councilman and Mrs. W. R. Jones is home from her confinement-ride junket with the Phillips S. Bates party. The Pacific Northwest editor took the party to New York stopping at various points en route and Union county was given desirable publicity by the trip. Miss Jones told her interesting story to the Observer today. She said:

"June 6.—I started for Portland where I was received by the chaperone and Mr. Bates at the Multnomah hotel. That noon we had luncheon with the Portland Ad club, a very jolly set of business men. Addresses were given by Phillip S. Bates and Albert G. Clark. After the luncheon we were ushered outside of the hotel where we had our pictures taken for the Oregonian and from then we were taken to the Lumbermen's National bank, met the president, Mr. Freeman and were shown through the bank. We entered a very large vault where we lifted $10,000 in gold, from here we were entertained by the manager of Council Crest where we again had our picture taken.

June 6th we started on our journey. We were met at the Multnomah hotel by autos which were furnished by the Northwestern officials to take us to the depot. On our arrival at the depot they presented us with a five pound box of candy. On entering our car we found that it was one mass of roses, the thanks going to the suffragettes of Portland.

"On June 9th was our first stop in Chicago where we dined with Mr. Ross at the depot grill. Mr. Ross is the publisher of the Pacific Northwest in Chicago. After lunch we went over to the art museum where we saw many paintings and statues. After stopping in Chicago for three hours we boarded the Michigan Central for Detroit. On our arrival there in the morning we were taken in autos to Belle Isle which is an island seven miles long. On the island we entered the conservatory where we saw many kinds of fish. Then we went to the watermarks park. From here we visited the Ford automobile factory. The building itself is very large; 7,000 men are employed, 380 of whom work in the offices alone. They make 25 machines in one hour and are behind 75,000 orders, 15,000 of which go to Canada, and 10,500 to London.

"From here we returned to the hotel where we were met by newspaper reporters. In the afternoon we visited the Burroughs Adding Machine factory, which employs 1,500 people continually. With this factory is a baseball team which has won many trophies. They turn out one machine in seven minutes. During this day we were the guests of Mr. Stogam.

"The next day was spent in Buffalo. In the morning we took the belt line in Niagara to see the falls. At noon we had lunch with the Shredded Wheat Biscuit company in their home. After lunch we were shown through the factory which we found to be very clean. All girls employed wore white caps and aprons. We found that the placing of the biscuit in the box was the only place where it is handled by the hands. In the evening we were met by autos which were sent to Buffalo by Elbert Hubbard to take us out to East Aurora. While there we visited Roycroft Inn which is an ideal place, the plainest and most artistic place I ever saw. At 9 o'clock we were taken back to Buffalo in the autos and then prepared to leave that night for New York City. On our arrival in New York City there were four newspaper reporters waiting at the train. Our pictures were taken and then every girl tried to tell why her country was the nicest. Then we took a sight seeing car, passed through the Ghetto and then to the aquarium. In the afternoon, Miss Marshall, a newspaper reporter, took us shopping in many of the large stores. We visited Tiffany's and later on in the day had tea at the Waldorf. The next day in New York City we went in sight seeing cars to visit the residence district. In the afternoon we went to Brooklyn and Coney Island where we saw the Atlantic ocean.

"The next day was spent in Washington where we visited the public market and then took sight seeing cars to see the residence district of Washington.

"In the afternoon we were received by President Taft in the east room of the white house. Senator Chamberlain ushered us into the white house. After shaking hands with the president, Mrs. Hartshorn, our chaperone, presented him with a bunch of roses from the crowd. Then we had our pictures taken on the piazza with President Taft and Senator Chamberlain showed us through the white house. From here we went to the Washington monument and went up as high as 500 feet where we saw the view of the city. In the evening we went to the congressional library, where we were instructed as to how the books were sent to different parts of the library by means of compressed air. The next morning we visited to Mt. Vernon where we entered at the public market again, then we Washington's home, saw rooms where Martha Washington and George Washington died. There were also many relics, among them the wedding dress of Martha Washington. We also saw their tombs. At noon we had lunch with Senator Chamberlain in the senator's cafe in the senate. After showing us around in the senate where we saw both the senators and house of representatives in session, we went to the subway (basement) where there was a little auto to take us around under there.

"The next day in Cincinnati where we were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Koster in the morning we visited the Zoo and afternoon took a run over to Kentucky.

"At Indianapolis in the morning we went to see the governor of Indiana and I visited the Van Camp's factory.

"The next two days were spent in Chicago where in the morning we took 'rubber neck' to view the city. In the afternoon we went out to Lincoln there's no place like home." And that's truth. A man's home is his castle. What a feeling of security and protection the ownership of his home gives a man! He becomes a citizen in the truest sense of the word, because he becomes vitally interested in the welfare of the community. The man who owns his own home has a standing in the community that he can secure in no other way. He has the respect of other men the confidence of the banks and business houses, the actual RIGHT, vested in ownership of property, to take his place in the business, political and social life of his city, and the knowledge that, come what may, he has his home to fall back on.

WHEREVER WE WANDER

His wife appreciates having her own home even more than the man himself. SHE knows what it means to move about from pillar to post at the whim of the Landlord, to fight for new wall paper and paint, repairs to plumbing and leaky roofs. He spends his days out in the world of business and work. SHE stays at home and keeps the house, and her home is her world. She values the little things that are hers about the home—the flowers she plants, the small conveniences she arranges, the pleasant neighbors and the associations she forms—and she hates to leave them.

And what about the children? Don't you think they take a pride in the fact that their Father owns his own home? If you don't just ask the first children you meet who are old enough to understand—especially the girls. The pride of ownership transmits itself to every member of the family. Their home is THEIRS—to have and to hold. Do YOU own YOUR home? If you don't we want to see you, for we can show you how to own a home in beautiful Connordale on easy terms, with perfect freedom, and with satisfaction all around. Don't delay too long over your decision to call us up—DO IT NOW.
