meyer was tricked early in the game after a disastrous attempt to hold the Bears at bay, and when Mountain took the mound he effected a momentary lull in the scoring noise. But he didn't keep it up and his offerings were hit with grass-burning effect at frequent intervals, making clean fielding on the fast diamond next to impossible. Mountain lasted the game as he never, going good at spurts and then being touched for four hits in the last two innings. Barry started the scoring in the fourth, the only true La Grande registered when he was walked and Melvor, Smith, King and Forbes ladder on the noses of several benders ejected by Bridger's mighty arm. Except in that inning Bridger performed in masterly style, letting his adversaries down with Bradley's lone hit in the seventh after one wobbly inning. The pepper and vim displayed by Walla Walla was just the reverse of the first two days. In fact hadn't Bridger's men behind been up on their toes, his hit column wouldn't have read a measly four.

Notes of the Game.
Swann, the noted O. A. C. athlete and coach, who has been in the front rank of track, basketball and baseball circles for several years, dropped into town this morning and was signed up. He is an infielder, a good hitter and a deer on bases.

"Shine" Harmon was hurt two days ago and was out of the game yesterday, Melvor taking his place in the hitting order.

Johnson was something of a "battering fool" yesterday. A triple and two doubles is some record especially out of four times up. Thompson came in for a long drive, too and Davis' home run is not to be overlooked.

"Cotton" Harmon, leaguer hitting champ, was walked and later was the first to score.

MARK TWAIN IN ANGER.

The Great Humorist Was a Volcano When He Broke Loose.

Famous authors are usually poor business men, but Mark Twain, according to William H. Hildner in his "Many Genialities and a Few Others," knew his own value and had no unbusinesslike indifference to the substantial recognition of it. The only critic Twain ever listened to with patience and respect and obeyed was his wife. Underneath his humor lay a deeply serious nature. Mr. Hildner says: "How mistaken were the people who, not knowing him, imagined that everywhere and on all occasions his attitude and point of view were those of the Jester. I never knew a more earnest man than he was or one whose aroused indignation was so overwhelming. When anger moved him you could see his lean figure contract, and his eyes sunnily screwed themselves into their sockets. Every fiber in him quivered, and for the moment his voice became acid and sibilant and out of time almost a whine.

"Then he would sit himself out in a break, like that of a dam unable to hold the flood, in language as candid and unshrinkable as the vernacular of the Elizabethans. Epithet would be piled on epithet, one following another with cumulative vigor and distinctness and the disclosing and illuminative effect of explosives.

"And not a word missed its mark; not a word seemed superfluous or exchangeable for any other word. Each fitted the use he made of it as a cartridge fits a rifle or a revolver; each told."

Advantages of Travel.
All travel has its advantages. If the passenger visits better countries he may learn to improve his own, and if fortune carries him to worse he may learn to enjoy his own.—Johnson.

How It Is Done.
Cook—Why didn't you come last Monday for yer dinner? Beggar—Why, I heard that you were washing and your mistress was doing the cooking.—Fleurette Blatter.

As He Saw It.
Miss Riche—I lost my heart last night, pa. I accepted Mr. Poore. Mr. Riche—H'm! You didn't lose your heart—you must have lost your head.

WAR'S HAVOC.
Kalem's Best War Picture.

The most sensational collision of two locomotives plunging headlong into each other, that has ever been produced in a motion picture; this, together with a thrilling leap from the engines to the water 30 feet below make a picture that is sensational, realistic, historical and interesting.

A fresh and dandy little comedy of political life in the future, "Perhaps," entitled "A Complicated Campaign," by the Lubin company.

"Billie," a sincere and sympathetic story, showing insight into the sorrows and troubles of those who are kept down, by the Edison company.

"Crazy Apples," by the Vitagraph company, make a well balanced and interesting program; that will be at Sherry's Friday and Saturday.
