BEAUCHAMP IS WONDER

HIS ADDRESS SPARKLES WITH WITICISM.

Sober Thoughts Expressed in Masterly Manner by Artist.

Lou J. Beauchamp, editor, globe-trotter, philosopher and humorist, entertained for two hours last night at chautauqua park in a masterly style. Using information gleaned from 43 years of study of the world on every continent and every sea, and coupled with that a splendid character of his own making, he took the audience, first, over a pathway of smiles and sunshine, then for a stroll along the darker, shadowy lines of life and then back, just before the close, to where smiles prevail. His lecture teemed with witticism and kernels of sober thought. Crime and its prevention was the subject matter of his address. He held that the breaking up of the home and improper training of the young character of the nation is responsible for the overwhelming increase in crime, especially so because a big majority of criminals are young. To teach the basic principles of Holy Writ in the schools was held forth as one panacea for the evil. Tonight Mr. Beauchamp lectures on "The Boy Age" and there will be something worth while again.

He precipitates his audience from boisterous laughter to sober thinking, by the winking of an eye, and he who has not heard Mr. Beauchamp while he is here, has overlooked an opportunity to hear one of the foremost globe trotters and philosophers of the day.

He is in a class by himself, a master of the art of entertaining and beyond question a unique character.
