 Winning for themselves places of honor at the La Grande family baseball game, the abbreviated second baseman, Southpaw Melvor, Chet Luttrell and "Hap" Smith yesterday secured, seeming defeat by the forelock and making the neck beautifully and made of Mountain a winning pitcher against Stanfield. La Grande finished like a race-horse. Just like she did the day before and took the game six to five. Two times before the game was over he looked hopeless for both pitchers and batters were going with a perfect game. Luttrell, Naughton and gone out on a fly to Nadeau in the last of the ninth with the scores to 5 for Melvor's favor. Barry put the job up to Melvor, the southpaw, and that second edition of Marquard blinged one squarely on the nose that left him safe and sound on first. Then Esola, the hero of yesterday, and every game becoming more heroic. He set the path so much like a hare that he stretched an beautiful three-bagger into a home run. The score was tied but there remained more to do. However, Barry had the need-ful hitting strength. Luttrell and Smith—the former placed himself on thick by stretching out one of Stanfield's plants to three bases and "Hap" Smith settled scores with Stanfield for troubles of the past by driving a liner by second base with handburning force. It was all over grade and a beautiful sixteen-fragger home and a perfect subject for the new installation that has been in operation ever since the Buckaroo came to town. Like the day before, La Grande scored early, sending Esola over the pan when he had singled and Smith sacrificed him home. La Grande scored on the second when Cannon got on with the fielder's choice and went to home on Augustus' error. Coming home when Robinson passed on a fly to the second baseman. A disastrous lining for Stanfield when Nadeau broke up the conspicuous place against Forbes and Naughton. The assistance of Robinson. Barry made got a run for Stanfield when he was over the hares that gambled off the Blue Mountains and forged a run with his wildness. But how he did tighten up after that. He verily made a C-grade at Stanfield from his hands until the last of the ninth when he "got his" properly.

Mountain had a bad lining in the fourth and it was that Pendleton got the bulk of her pain. A triple, a double and two singles is what the Buckeroos did to him. Nadeau started the fire works, and Pembroke got on when Mountain threw out to first. Then Wilson drove a two-bagger into the outfield scoring Pembroke and was himself scored by Augustus' single. Stanfield evened him but Rader made the third out. Mountain had the lining in his hand and didn't take it for when Naughton passed him going home on Pembroke's hit, the pitcher could have tagged him out readily enough. But in the next inning Mountain gave evidence of gaining control of himself again and held the Bucks down to one run. Nadeau again appearing after a walk and Mountain's error. Then the Puplin with the Alpine team went down from three on weakening only a triple in the ninth when he walked Wilson and that digitary came home on Robinson's hit. Then came that glorious last of the ninth, the story of which has already been told on a hundred corners and at club stands. Mountain deserved to win for his pitching was superb. His only weakness being in holding. But the manner in which the victory was recorded made the situation a thriller. The score

Notes of the Game
 We'll leave it to the bunch if Esola makes anybody sick around these hills—anybody but Curro's wife. He has a way of getting a half out of his hands with lightning speed and a flash of his arm that can get over some ground even though they are small.
 Rader robbed Forbes of a hit when he stopped a grounder.
 Augustus' and Pembroke's home runs combined to put on an over-whelming total. The Grande had a 7-0 victory again and that's all.
 We have to peddle so much to-day for the game that we are not even getting the usual amount of some of the things that we are going to be selling. He is a hundred more at home there than of them.
 The pitcher who was working up like a trooper when he pitched the game in the ninth, hearing that there would be added runs to the game. His mission was to hold the vi when Smith poked out his first strike.
