SNAPSHOTS AT CELEBRITIES

Douglas Robinson, Executor of the Astor Estate.

The will of John Jacob Astor, who perished in the wreck of the Titanic created no trusteeship for his son, Vincent Astor, but gave him all his real estate absolutely. But as young Astor is still a minor the old trustees hold over until he comes of age.

The compensation of the executors and trustees, who are Nicholas Biddle, James Roosevelt Roosevelt and Douglas Robinson, was fixed in the will. These are the same men who have been acting as trustees under the will of Colonel Astor's father. In addition to outright bequests of $20,000 each Colonel Astor allowed each of them $35,000 for their services as executors and $50,000 for their services under the three trusteeships created for Mrs Astor, Muriel Astor and his expected posthumous child. This brings the interest of each under the will up to $105,000.

A prominent New York lawyer said that Colonel Astor drove a hard bargain when he gave the executors and trustees but $85,000 for their services. Their legal commissions, he said, might have exceeded $1,000,000 each. The will provides that the compensation mentioned shall be in place of fees.

Douglas Robinson, one of the executors, is a brother-in-law of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. He is president and director of the Douglas Robinson-Charles S. Brown company, real estate, and holds the same offices in the Douglas Land company. He is also director of the Astor Trust company and of the Realty Associates and a trustee in the Atlantic Mutual Insurance and the Fulton Trust companies. He is a graduate of Oxford, '76. His wife was Corinne Roosevelt.

four years old. He is of youthful appearance, affable in manner and wears a habitually good natured expression. He is a man of broad experience and well acquainted with American customs through his rectorship of the propaganda college, which he had held since 1904 and which had brought him in contact with many American and English students. Before that he had a long residence in India, and for six years previous to his appointment to the propaganda college he had been missionary to China. He speaks English fluently.

Dolly In Doubt.

Dorothy—Mother, when I get married shall I have a husband like papa?
Mother—Certainly, my dear.
Dorothy—And if I stay single shall I be an old maid like Aunt Anna?
Mother—I think you will.
Dorothy (with a deep sigh)—Well, I am in a fix.—Boston Transcript.

The Confession of a Heroine.

"And you didn't promise 'to obey' in the marriage service?"
"No, Susie, I didn't."
"That was brave."
"Yes, but honest, Susie, I'd sooner have said it than lose him."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Some Improvement.

Jack—Are you sure that I am the only man you ever really and truly loved? Ethel—Perfectly sure, dear. I went over the whole list only yesterday.—Boston Transcript.

This Life.

Life is made up not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually are what win the heart and secure comfort.—Sir H. Davy.

The First Lesson of an Arab Boy.

The very first lesson which an Arab baby learns when he begins to talk is to keep facts to himself. It does not sound very friendly put in that way, but it saves a deal of trouble. Foreigners do not understand Arabs. They ask them pointed questions and receive peculiar answers. They construe the answers to please themselves and come away to tell the world that the Arabs are a nation of liars. They are not a nation of liars. Perhaps if they should tell the foreigners to mind their own affairs and let them and theirs alone the foreigners would understand them better.—Exchange.

Johnson's Definitions.

Dr. Johnson perpetrated many jokes in his dictionary, but among his most famous blunders was his definition of "pastern" as "the knee of a horse." Dr. Johnson defined oats as "a grain which in England is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people." He defined "pensioner" as "a slave of state, hired by a stipend to obey his master," which definition was made much of by the doctor's enemies when he himself was awarded a pension.
