A Surprise Party That Started a Bride in India.

"I was married in India," says a writer in the Contra Costa Gazette. "and rented a little house fourteen miles or so from any other habitation of white men. The morning my wife and I arrived the servants laid breakfast on the veranda overlooking the river. At the clatter of the plates there began to come down from the big tree that overshadowed the house and up the tree that grew in the ravine behind it, from the house roof itself, from everywhere, a multitude of solemn monkeys.

"They came up singly and in couples and in families and took their places without noise or fuss on the veranda and sat there like an audience waiting for an entertainment to begin. And when the breakfast was all laid and the monkeys were all seated I went in to call my wife.

"Breakfast is ready, and they are all waiting," I said.

"Who are waiting?" she asked in dismay. "I thought we were going to be alone, and I was just coming out in my dressing gown."

"Never mind," I said. "The people about here are not fashionably dressed. They wear pretty much the same things all the year round."

"And so my wife came out. Imaginative astonishment. In the middle of the veranda stood our breakfast table, and all the rest of the space, as well as the railfairs and the steps, was covered with an immense company of monkeys as grave as possible and as motionless and silent as if they were stuffed. Only their eyes kept blinking and their little round ears kept twitching. My wife laughed heartily—at which the monkeys only looked all the graver and sat down.

"Will they eat anything?" she asked.

"Try them," I said.

"So she picked up a biscuit and threw it among the company. Three hundred monkeys jumped into the air like one, and for an instant there was a riot that defies description. The next moment every monkey was sitting in its place as solemn as if it had never moved. Only their eyes winked and their ears twitched.

"My wife threw them another biscuit, and the riot broke out again. Then she threw them another and another and another. But at last we had given away all that we had to give and got up to go. The monkeys at once rose and, advancing gravely to the steps, walked down them in a solemn procession and dispersed for the day's occupations."

A Study in Punctuation. A celebrated eastern educator comes who has spent much time in studying literature comma tells us that the modern writer uses too many punctuation marks semicolon that he often gets them in the wrong place and that they are a nuisance comma anyhow period.

Another shark on literature comma however comma says that it is impossible for any person to write without using punctuation marks period. Being of a gentle turn comma we do not feel like coming right out and calling the latter gentleman a quotation marks liar comma quotation marks but we have demonstrated comma to the satisfaction of ourself comma at least comma that writing can be done without the use of any punctuation mark whatsoever period. How do you like it in terrogation point. Brooklyn Engle.

Envy.

My teacher says that I'm the best And smartest boy in school. I'm never careless, like the rest; I never break a rule. If visitors should come to call She has me speak a piece Or tell what makes an apple fall Or bound the coast of Greece.

You might expect that, since my brain Holds such an awful lot, I'd be extremely proud and vain, But, oh, indeed I'm not! For Willie Brown's a cleverer lad Than I can hope to be. Why, I'd give anything I had To be as smart as he.

He can't recite "Hark, hark, the lark!" He's not the teacher's pet. He never gets a perfect mark in 'rithmetic, and yet Could I be he I'd waste no tears On foolish things like sums, For Willie Brown can wag his ears And dislocate his thumbs. —Deems Taylor in Youth's Companion.

Self Evident.

Liz—Wot makes 'em go up in the air them things?

Alf—W'y, the blinkin' hinjin, yer silly kid.

Liz—Well, ain't motors got hinjins?

Alf—Course they 'as, but they ain't got no wings, 'ave 'em?

Liz—Then it's the wings as makes 'em go up, ain't it?

Alf—Pawtly. Well, it's like this: They runs along the ground a bit, an' then the wind gits under the wings, an' hup they go! See?

Liz—Wunnerful, ain't it?

Alf—Jest abah.

Liz—An' 'ow do they come dahn, then, Alf?

Alf—W'y, stop the hinjin, o' course.

Liz—But 'ow can they git the wind aht from under the wings?

Alf—Well, frinstance—well, 'ow does a bird do it?

Liz—I dunno.

Alf—You seen a bird, i s'pose, ain't yer?

Liz—Eaps.

Alf—An' you seen a bird come dahn, i s'pose?

Liz—Oh, yus; i seen that!

Alf—Well, then, don't arst sich silly queeshuns.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Thoughtful Georgie.

"Papa," said Georgie, "it worries me awful to think how much trouble I give mamma."

"She hasn't complained."

"No, she's very patient. But she of ten sends me to the shops for things and they are a good way off, and I know she gets cross waiting when she's in a hurry."

"Not often I fancy."

"Oh, she's nearly always in a hurry. She gets everything all ready for breakfast and duds at the last minute she's in a great sweat, and she gets a pudding all mixed and finds she hasn't any nutmeg or something, and then she's in an awful stew, 'cause the oven is all ready, and maybe visitors are coming, and I can't run a very long distance, you know, and I feel awful sorry for poor mamma."

"Humph! Well, what can you do about it?"

"I was thinking you might get me a bicycle."—Pearson's Weekly.

Where Was It?

President Mellon of the New Haven likes railroad stories, no matter what the variety, and was immensely pleased with one of the lesser officials the other day when he told him this one as being not only true, but as an occurrence in the New Haven station:

A nervous lady stopped a baggage-master and demanded to know why her train was arriving so late.

"Well," said he, "it's just like this: The train ahead is behind, and this train was behind before besides."

The lady could not figure it, and neither for a moment could President Mellon.—Boston Traveler.

Essential to Success.

Lambert Kaspers, Chicago attorney told the following story at a recent Young Men's Christian association banquet:

A Kansas farmer, a Dane, applied for naturalization papers. The judge asked him, "Are you satisfied with the general conditions of the country?"

"Yes," drawled the Dane.

"Does the government suit you?" queried the judge.

"Yas, yas; only I would like to see more rain," replied the farmer.—Chicago Tribune.

Words of Weight.

"The ancients used to write in clay and then bake it."

"Yes," replied the man who was reading the latest speech. "In those days when they spoke of hurling epithets at a man it meant something."—Washington Star.

Taking No Chances.

"I see in this paper that Dr. Wiley says a wife is entitled to one-third of the husband's salary."

"Yes. The trouble is that so many wives don't seem to know when third it is and take all three."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Explained.

"What is this domestic science?" inquired the engaged girl.

"It consists of making hash out of the left over meat and croquettes out of the left over hash," explained her more experienced friend.—Pittsburgh Post.
