A RAZOR PROOF SNAIL

It Strolled the Entire Length of the Blade's Keen Edge.

"When photographing a snail," writes Professor Ward in the London Strand Magazine, "I was surprised at the fact that even the rough cut edge of a sheet of glass presented no difficulties to its locomotion. Its even pace was continued in spite of the fact that the sharp corner appeared to be penetrating its body. There we have exhibited the animal's delicate sense of touch, and this led me to make a further experiment.

"After I had placed the snail on the butt of a razor's blade it slowly moved along the back of the blade and then climbed completely over the sharp edge, the razor being in excellent condition. As the successive waves brought the fore part of its foot near the edge of the blade its head was held low down, and the lower and shorter pair of feelers nearly touched the blade, as if feeling the way.

"At the moment when the sharp edge was reached the small feelers were fully extended toward it, and just at the very instant when I expected to see them cut off they were both instantly retracted. They were little more than a hairbreadth away, and, though the lower feelers possess no eyes, yet by their sudden movement I was quite convinced that the snail at that instant recognized danger.

"Still the foot traveled on, and slowly the snail dragged its whole weight of exactly one and a half ounces over the edge after moving toward the butt and remaining perfectly unharmed. The species experimented with was the Roman or edible kind, which accounts for its comparatively large weight, it being the largest of British snails."

German Court Balls

In the German court balls not all those who are invited are permitted to take part in the dances which the emperor witnesses. The emperor has no love for "the quick and slovenly." Many months before the ball the selected couples rehearse the dances under the direction of Miss Gasperini, mistress of the court ballet. The empress criticizes freely the ladies and gentlemen who show any shortcomings. The ordinary rehearsals take place in one of the chambers of the palace, but the final rehearsal is held on the eve of the ball at the residence of one of the invited.

The Widener Memorial

Peter A. B. Widener of Philadelphia lost his son and grandson in the Titanic disaster. As a memorial to them he is adding $4,000,000 to the first endowment of $3,000,000 for the Widener Home for Crippled Children. Safely invested and economically administered, the income on this additional sum should offer support, care and surgical attention for more than 300 helpless child victims of accident or of heredity not for one year or ten years, but for all time or so long as invested capital pays interest.

The Law

Of all the parts of a law, the most effectual is the vindictive, for it is but lost labor to say, "Do this or avoid that," unless we also declare, "This shall be the consequence of your non-compliance." The main strength and force of a law consist in the penalty annexed to it.—Blackstone.

Sounded All Right

Patience—Well, he told the truth, anyway. Patrice—How so? Patience—When he was buying the solitaire he told the jeweler it was for a sister. Patrice—Well, I'm sure that wasn't true. Patience—Why, yes; when he offered it to the girl she promised to be a sister to him.—Yonkers Statesman.

Eager to Please

"I want you to see if you can't find out that I am descended from a king," said the man who had become suddenly rich. "Very well, sir," replied the genealogist. "We have a large stock of kings to select from. Have you any preference?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Popular Girl

"Yes; she has promised to be mine some day." "But when?" "She can't exactly say as yet. Seems she will first have to break off four or five other engagements."—Washington Herald.

His Status at Home

"Your father seems to be an important member of the community." "Guess you've only seen him outside of home. Ma doesn't think he's such a much."—Detroit Free Press.

Famous Pens

The collecting of pens that have been owned by or associated with famous personages is a hobby that has attracted some collectors, though the pursuit is an expensive one. A well worn gold pen used by Charles Dickens brought $200 at a sale of his effects. A pen made out of wood from a box owned by George Washington, the box having been made from a desk brought to America by the Mayflower, is valued at $2,500.—Exchange.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Difference.

When I go 'cross the street to play And mother says that I may stay One hour at Dorothy's, oh, my, The way that one short hour does fly! We just about get settled down To make our dolls a hat or gown Or jump the rope or make mud pies When, to our very great surprise, The clock at Dorothy's will say, "The hour is up, so no more play!" Just how it can be I don't know, But that old clock can hurry so!

When mother says, "It's practice time," And I must wash my hands and climb On that piano stool, dear me, That hour's as different as can be! The outdoors looks so fresh and gay, And Dorothy has gone to play, The boy next door has made a swing And swings as high as anything, And down the street the organ man Is striding all the tunes he can— And here I have to drum away One whole long hour this lovely day! I don't see how one hour can be As long as that one seems to me. —Youth's Companion.

Alphabet of Proverbs.

A grain of prudence is worth a pound of graft. Boasters are cousins of liars. Denying a fault doubles it. Envy shoots at others and wounds herself. Foolish fear doubles danger. God teaches us good things by our own hands. He has hard work who has nothing to do. It costs more to revenge wrongs than to suffer them. Knavery is the worst trade. Learning makes a man fit company for himself. Modesty is a guard to virtue. Not to hear conscience is the way to silence it. One hour today is worth two tomorrow.

Proud looks make foul work in fair faces. Quiet conscience is quiet sleep. Richest is he that wants least. Small faults indulged in are little thieves that let in great ones. The thoughts that bear most hang lowest. Upright walking is sure walking. Virtue and happiness are mother and daughter. Wise men make more opportunities than they find. You never lose by doing a good act.

Game of Elements.

After two captains have been chosen they proceed to select their parties, choosing alternately till the company is equally divided. They seat themselves in two rows facing each other. One of the captains begins the game by throwing a ball or knotted handkerchief to one of the players on the opposite side, crying aloud at the same time either "earth," "air," "fire" or "water." He usually tries to throw it to one who is apparently least expecting it. If "air" is the word called the person in whose lap or nearest whom the missile falls must promptly name some bird; if "water," a fish or some denizen of the water; if "earth," an animal—before the thrower counts ten—but at the word "fire" no reply must be made.

If the player answers correctly he then throws the ball or handkerchief in his turn to one of his opponents, but if he fails to answer in time or replies incorrectly or speaks when it is not his place to answer he drops out of the game. This rule is strict, for thus is the winning side determined, the game going on till all on one side have had to retire from the contest.

A Wren's Singing Lesson.

A wren whose nest was in a box near a country house was watched by the family as she patiently instructed her little ones, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Placing herself on one side of the opening and in front of her pupils, she first sang her entire song very distinctly. One little flutterer opened its mouth and tried to follow her, but after a few notes its voice gave out and it lost the tune. Mamma Wren immediately took up the melody at that point and sang it through as clearly as possible, when the youngster tried it again and finished triumphantly.

Then the mother sang again, and another nestling followed her, breaking down as the first had done and beginning afresh. Sometimes there were three or four failures before the tune was carried through, but the wren always began where the little one broke down and sang to the end. These singing lessons lasted for some time, and several of them were given every day.

Conundrums.

Why do some congressmen wear long beards? Because their wives buy their neckties. Why are chemists so clever at an answering? Because they use a retort. Is it unhealthful for a dog to sleep in its owner's bedroom? Dogs are tough animals. He may get used to it. Why are some Englishmen so very straight? Probably because they are descendants of great rulers. Why are some men called "seashoremen"? They are young peers (queers). They have sandy complexions, wavy hair and spend oceans of money.
