Diversified Farming.
We read and hear a great deal about diversified farming. This in reality is nothing more or less than balanced farming. This kind of farming is most easily and successfully brought about by the keeping of a few cows and the sale of dairy products. Cows necessarily result in the growing of calves and pigs. The chore keeping for cows, calves and pigs will, in our judgment, give a much greater return than the same time expended on any worked crop.—Kansas Farmer.

Care of Young Turkeys.
Teach the young turkeys to come home every night for feed and to roost. It will save many a long, weary search for them this fall, make them tame and more easily caught when market time comes and prevent them from falling a prey to the varmints. Then we never could see the difference between a drove of turkeys foraging on a neighbor farmer's crop and a herd of cattle breaking into his field and destroying the crop.

Feather Eating Hens.
Lice sometimes causes feather eating. The hen, in attempting to ease herself of the annoyance caused by the irritating presence of the lice, picks at the base of the feathers, occasionally pulls one out and, finding it succulent, continues till she becomes a confirmed feather eater.

Water For Hens.
The drinking vessels for poultry should be kept clean and be filled with clear, pure water at all times. It is a good plan to put charcoal in the water occasionally, as it absorbs impurities.

GETTING RESULTS ON THE DAIRY FARM

Good Feed and Pure Water Essential to Success.

Dairying, in my opinion, is among the best paying propositions for any farmer if properly handled, writes N. J. Nelson in the American Agriculturist. Those having a sufficient acreage to raise their own feed, of course, can make it more profitable than he who must buy. For my part, I raise all I need and a little besides, especially when the crops are good. A milk cow needs to be well cared for in order to produce the best results. A good, warm, well ventilated barn in which to be housed in the winter and plenty of clean water and pasture during the summer will keep her in good health and enable her to work at her natural capacity.

It has been my experience that when milk cows are compelled to drink dirty water during the summer it will be apt to bring bad results in the fall and winter. Feeding a healthy animal improper food and providing poor drink are most certain to result in a loss. I have handled milk cows as suggested for twenty years and never have had an animal get sick nor show any symptoms of illness caused by careless feeding or poor water. In fact, I have not lost a single cow during this entire time.

The dairyman should always endeavor to keep the cows and sire healthy, and if he has good quarters for his herd he invariably will have a good crop of calves. When dairying is handled wisely and on a businesslike basis it proves one of the most profitable industries in connection with general farming.

Collecting the Butter.
To separate butter from the butter milk get a yard of cheesecloth, wet it in cold water and spread over the top of a crock. Pour the buttermilk and butter into the cloth from the churn, then, taking the cloth up by the corners, work it back and forth. All the buttermilk thus will soon be drained out, leaving the butter to be worked and salted.

Spray the Cows.
It takes a little time to spray the cows before milking every evening, and it also costs a little cash for a hand sprayer and fly repellent, but the cows will return the cash in the form of milk, and the time spent in spraying can be made up while milking because there will be no time spent in fighting flies.

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT.

"Doing What?" Why, thinking and talking about Connordale, of course. Pretty soon the 56 lots that still remain unsold will be gone and more than 200 people will be getting ready to take advantage of our building offer. And those who have delayed taking action will be disappointed. That is the experience of all who fail to take advantage of a good opportunity when it is presented to them.

You may say, "Why, I knew that piece of property when it was a vacant field, and I could have bought it for a song." If that is true you also can probably look back upon the time—nto so very long ago—when La Grande was a village. But La Grande is now a full-fledged young city with the second greatest pay-roll in the state, and with miles of paved streets and other city improvements. And Connordale is the best located and choicest bit of fully-improved and restricted residence property on the market. And La Grande is going to keep on growing and improving, while those who stand idly by and criticize the price of property and belittle the necessity for improvements and lead the calamity chorus will be left at the post as usual.

These are FACTS—straight from the shoulder—and every fair-minded progressive resident of La Grande knows that they are true. If you haven't seen Connordale yet, let us take you down in an automobile and show it to you.

Since he was elected to the crown by the Norwegian people in 1905 he has steadily grown in the favor of his adopted subjects.
