but from the knowledge I have gained through hard experience during the many years in which, under many and varied conditions, I have striven and toiled with men. I believe in a larger use of the governmental power to help remedy industrial wrongs because it has been borne in on me by actual experience that without the exercise of such power many of the wrongs will go unremedied. I believe in a larger opportunity for the people themselves directly to participate in government and to control their governmental agents, because long experience has taught me that without such control many of their agents will represent them badly. By actual experience in office I have found that, as a rule, I could secure the triumph of the causes in which I most believed, not from the politicians and the men who claim an exceptional right to speak in business and government, but by going over their heads and appealing directly to the people themselves.

"I am not under the slightest delusion as to any power that during my political career I have at any time possessed. Whatever of power I at any time had I obtained from the people. I could exercise it only so long as and to the extent that the people not merely believed in me, but heartily backed me up. Whatever I did as president I was able to do only because I had the backing of the people. When on any point I did not have that backing, when on any point I differed from the people, it mattered not whether I was right or whether I was wrong, my power vanished. I tried my best to lead the people, to advise them, to tell them what I thought was right; if necessary I resolutely refused to tell them what I thought they ought to hear, even though it would be unpleasant for them to hear it, but I recognized that my task was to try to lead them and not to drive them, to take them into my confidence, to try to show them that I was right and then loyally and in good faith to accept their decision. I will do anything for the people except what my conscience tells me is wrong, and that I can do for no man and no set of men. I hold that a man cannot serve the people well unless he serves his conscience, but I hold also that where his conscience bids him refuse to do what the people desire he should not try to continue in office against their will. Our government system should be so shaped that the public servant, when he cannot conscientiously carry out the wishes of the people, shall at their desire leave his office and not misrepresent them in office, and I hold that the public servant can by so doing better than in any other way serve both them and his conscience.

"Surely there never was a fight better worth making than the one in which we are engaged. It little matters what befalls any one of us who for the time being stands in the forefront of the battle. I hope we shall win, and I believe that if we can wake the people to what the fight really means we shall win. But, win or lose, we shall not falter. Whatever fate may at the moment overtake any of us, the movement itself will not stop. Our cause is based on the eternal principles of righteousness, and even though we who have led may for the time fall in the end the cause itself shall triumph. Six weeks ago, here in Chicago, I spoke to the honest representatives of a convention which was not dominated by honest men, a convention wherein sat, alas, a majority of men who, with sneering indifference to every principle of right, so acted as to bring to a shameful end a party which had been founded over half a century ago by men in whose souls burned the fire of lofty endeavor. Now to you men who in your turn have come together to spend and be spent in the endless crusade against wrong, to you who face the future resolute and confident, to you who strive in a spirit of brotherhood for the betterment of our nation, to you who vindicate yourselves for this great new fight in the never ending warfare for the good of humankind, I say in closing what in that speech I said in closing: We stand at Armageddon, and we battle for the Lord."

- Albany.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 6.—Charged with the duty of legislating for the fraternal interests of nearly three quarters of a million members, the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias assembled for its biennial meeting here today and will continue in session about ten days.

The meeting promises to be the most important ever held by the governing body of the order. Much interest centers around the general election Thursday. It is conceded that the present supreme vice-chancellor, Thomas J. Carling of Macon, Ga., will be elevated to the office of supreme chancellor in succession to George M. Hanson of Maine. The principal contest will be for the office of supreme vice chancellor for which there are five candidates; Benjamin I. Salinger of Iowa; B. S. Young of Ohio, William Ladew of New York, Charles S. Davis of Colorado and John J. Brown of Illinois.

A number of important legislative matters will come before the supreme lodge for consideration and action. Some minor changes in the ritual will probably be made and action will be taken on proposals to reduce the age limit for members from 21 to 18 and to extend the order into foreign lands. The grand lodge of Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia have asked that the order be extended to the "mother country," and it is probable that the request will be granted.

Another topic that will engage the attention of the supreme lodge will be "Pythian Education," the extension of the knowledge of Pythian knight-hood and its work. Supreme Chancellor Hanson will speak at length on this subject and it is expected that the body will give much thoughtful consideration to the plans proposed.

The meeting will discuss preliminary plans for the proper observance of the golden jubilee of the order two years hence. It is proposed that the anniversary shall be celebrated with a great meeting of the membership in Washington, D. C., where the first lodge of the order was instituted February 19, 1864, by Justus H. Rathbone and about a dozen associates. From this modest beginning the Knights of Pythias has increased its membership to a total of 711,000, distributed among 2,000 lodges in all parts of the United States and Canada and in Mexico, China, Cuba, Hawaii, Panama and the Philippines.

A unique feature of the week's program will be a meeting at which representatives of three of the great fraternities, representing an aggregate of more than 3,000,000 members, will emphasize the place and power of fraternal life in individual and national life. The speakers will be John B. Corkum of Illinois, grand sire of the I. O. O. F. and Fellows and Rebekahs, George B. Griggs of Houston, Texas, Great Inchoonee of the 350,000 E. O. L. Men, and Judge Hanson, representing the 711,000 Pythians. All are members of the Pythian order and each man belongs to the other orders represented.

During the recesses of the supreme lodge the regular biennial meetings will be held by the several organizations affiliated with the Knights of Pythias. These will include the supreme temple of the Pythian Sisters representing nearly 200,000 members of which Mrs. Sara L. Cotton of Weatherford, Texas, is supreme, chief of the association of grand keepers of records and seals, of which W. T. Hollowell of Goldsboro N. C. is president, and the Pythian editorial association, of which H. M. Quin, speaker of the Mississippi house of representatives, is president.

The program of entertainment and special features prepared for the week is as follows:
 Tuesday evening—Reception at the Brown Palace hotel.
 Wednesday evening—Page Rank at auditorium.
 Thursday evening—Esquire and Knight ranks.
 Friday evening—Grand ball and a lecture on the history of Pythias.
 Saturday—Excursion trip to Corona.
 Sunday afternoon—Supreme lodge memorial services.

STRONG LADY REAL WONDER

BARNUM AND BAILEY FEATURE IS A WOMAN.

One Performance Only of Big Show Here.

When the Barnum and Bailey greatest show on earth comes to La Grande on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 27, visitors to the circus will see the most remarkable woman ever in America—Kate Sandwina. She is only 22 years of age, six feet in height and from the scum of the stand-out perfect type of womanhood. Among circus people she is known as the strongest woman in the world—and stronger than any man who ever exhibited in an arena.

Miss Sandwina was born in Italy though she has spent most of her life in England. She pits her strength against that of a horse. She juggles heavy men as though they were babies. She bends heavy rods with her fingers. She can drive a nail through an inch board using her hand fist as a hammer. This is the strangest circus novelty that has been seen in America, and one that will not be forgotten by those who visit the circus.

In the menagerie will be found the only baby giraffe on exhibition anywhere on earth. It was born in Bridgeport, Conn., last February. The morning parade is all new and three miles long. The one performance to be given here will be preceded by the gorgeous scenic spectacle of "Cleopatra," enacted on the biggest stage in the world by a cast of 1,250 characters, a ballet of 350 dancing girls, a grand opera chorus, an orchestra of 100 soloists, 650 horses, five herds of elephants and a caravan of camels. A trainload of scenery and stage effects is used in the various scenes. One performance only.

Mr. W. S. Gansalus, a farmer living near Fleming, Pa., says he has used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for fourteen years, and that he has found it to be an excellent remedy, and takes pleasure in recommending it. For sale by all dealers.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsay Scott, of Temple, Indiana. For sale by all dealers.

Sugars and Syrups

MUCH of the taste and pleasure in eating good food depends on the sugar and syrups used.

Think of the finished delight given to your morning meal when the syrup used with your cakes is pleasing to your taste—note that deliciousness when you drink well-made coffee with the right kind of sugar in it. Small matters—yes—but it is just those small matters that make life a complete success or a round of annoyances. We have studied the question—we pride ourselves on our attention to details of the kind. Come in and ask us.
