Last evening the Palmer Mill team established a good margin over their nearest competitors for the Twilight league pennant by defeating the Clerks in a fiercely contested game by a score of four to three. The interest in the game was the best so far in the season as both teams were tied for first place and it almost foretells who will be the winner of the league.

At the end of the third inning the Millers were three in the lead but in the first of the fourth, the Clerks, with a hit by Billings, a three bagger, by Murchinson, and an error on the part of the Millers brought in two more runs, but the rally was not strong enough to gain the one more required run to tie the Millers. The Millers did not take their bats in the fourth, being in the lead and darkness would have prevented another inning.

TENDERFOOTS' SCALES FALL

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY MAN IS SURPRISED.

Comes to Eastern Oregon as Non-Beverer but Changes Mind.

By J. T. Matthews, of Willamette University.
Only one explanation is adequate—I must be a tenderfoot, the tenderest of the tender.

What is a tenderfoot, anyway? When little Willie kicks off his shoes and stockings the first time in the summer, the progress of his delicate feet down the gritty road and across the stubby fields is marked by a series of shocks, little and big, that call forth numberless ohs, and ouches and ahs.

That is my case exactly. I reside in Salem, that exquisite Boston of the west. And I have experienced in this, my first journey east of the Cascades, a series of shocks of surprise. Why, you have everything—churches, school houses, automobiles, electric lights, libraries, shoe polish.

This is not for publication; but I bought a hairbrush in Echo, "Shinola" in Pendleton, white ties in Imbler, a cutaway in Joseph, a tooth brush in Elgin—all to meet the extreme civilization that I have found in the cow counties of Eastern Oregon.

My tour began at Umatilla. As I looked over those wide undulating plains around Umatilla, Hermiston and Echo, I said to myself, "Yes, this is the Eastern Oregon you have been reading about—vast open view, irrigation ditches, vivid contrasts between waters and unwatered ground—yes, you had it pictured all right in your mind. Great headpiece that of yours, old boy."

Later I was not so proud of my penetration and knowledge.

Surprise number one smote me at Pendleton. It was not the miles and miles of grain fields, nor the marvelous combines dropping the sacks of wheat so intelligently that I should not have wondered to see biscuit and sandwiches comes out of the machine. It was the city itself. I certainly was not prepared for the paved streets, the enormous business area, the metropolitan clatter and air, the extensive commerce, the beautiful residence districts.

Joseph and the surrounding country fairly took my breath. A few weeks ago a friend of mine suggested to me that Joseph would be a delightful summer resort. The idea made me smile. That, you see, was before I left the benighted little village of Salem. I know better now. For I have gazed on those snow-streaked mountains, drunk from those mountain springs, whirled in an auto over the winding roadway on the banks of that matchless lake, and slept the sleep of the just in the cool night of that lofty altitude. If tourists and those seeking summer rest and recuperation knew what Joseph and Wallowa Lake have to offer, that Switzerland of America would be crowded every summer.

But the biggest surprise I have had had since I strolled from home was the high school building right here in La Grande. I am a tenderfoot—in this region—a genuine, authenticated, conscious tenderfoot. But I know a schoolhouse when I see it. Your high school building, with its artistic pieces, its well equipped laboratories, its departments of manual training, domestic science, and commerce, would be a credit to any city. As I thurstastic guidance of your superintendent, Professor Stout,—well, to say that I was astonished and stirred to admiration would be putting it mildly. I forgot that I was in a high school. It seemed, rather, a thoroughly equipped and beautifully adorned building of some wealthy college. Fortunate, indeed, are the young people of La Grande.

A vast amount of ill health is due to stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured—why not you? For sale by all dealers.
