Sheriff Childers returned today from Seattle where he went to take in charge E. J. Clark and the woman with whom it is alleged Clark worked in passing worthless checks. The sheriff had a warrant for the woman too, but found here in a critical state of health and did not require her to return with him. The sheriff has been complimented by the district attorney for not enforcing the arrest of the woman.

Business Men in Theatricals.

The Chicago Herald of May 8th said it is strange the strides business men have made in the theatrical business since they began investing in those enterprises. No longer is it looked upon as a hazardous game. A coterie of solid business men of Chicago have organized what is known as the United Play company and have bought the western rights to a number of the leading dramatic successes and will present the plays in the leading cities of the middlewest and coast. Some minor towns will be visited to shorten the jumps.

PERSONALS.

Ed Rogers of Enterprise was at the Sommer this morning.

J. Taylor and wife of Sumpter were at the Sommer hotel yesterday.

R. S. Eccles was in the city yesterday.

day from Baker, staying at the Sommer hotel.

F. L. Wesherd, the Hamilton shoe representative, was at the Foley from St. Louis last night.

F. A. Cook of Rumley's collecting agency was here from Portland over Sunday, staying at the Foley.

C. F. Cox of Ontario was a Foley visitor Sunday.

John and W. S. Mitchell, well known Cove people, were in the city yesterday, staying at the Foley.

Adam Beck, a well known resident of Wallowa, was a Sunday visitor in La Grande. He stopped at the Foley. Harry Neer, a Portland hardware salesman, and J. A. McGregor, a Portland cigar salesman, were among the Sunday visitors at the Foley.

George H. Currey, Jr., left last evening for Salem where he enters Willamette university for his second year's studies.

O. L. Wall and wife, 1701 Oak street, have returned from a trip to Minnesota and Canadian points on their return. They report a pleasant journey.

Wilson George has arrived from Portland to take a position as piano player at Sherry's. Mr. George was employed in the Star theatre when that institution was first opened.

J. M. Blakesly, and F. W. Bowman, well known horsemen, arrived yesterday from Baker where they spent last week attending the races. Mr. Blakesly lost the relay to Spain for the week by 5 1/2 seconds.

Charles Reynolds took his departure last evening for Chicago where he enters Rush Medical college. He would have been a senior at O. A. C. this year but transferred his scene of duties to the east. O. A. C.'s football squad loses a veteran quarterback incidentally thereby.

Where to Go in La Grande.

Tragedy of the Desert.

One of the finest pictures produced by Kalem during the sojourn in Egypt is "The Tragedy of the Desert." In two complete reels. It is a tale of love, intrigue and adventure and features versatile Gene Gauntier. Shown at the Elite tonight and Tuesday.

Classy Vaudeville.

Lee & Chandler opened at the Arcade last night to a capacity house and proved themselves to be the best sister team ever here. Their act goes with a vim; there is not a dull moment in it.

They introduce a combination of humorous dialogue, songs and dances, closing with the "Texas Tommy." Don't miss seeing this clever act tonight. Also "The Power of Destruction," a three reel photoplay feature.

NEW FITTERS AT WEST'S.

Two Skilled Ready-to-Wear Department Employees Added to Force

Patrons of West's ready-to wear department will be pleased to know that this store has recently added to its force, two expert fitters.

Mrs. L. Hall of Portland, who for several years has been connected with some of the best stores in Omaha and Salt Lake, will be in charge of the fitting department.

Miss Blanche Bentley of Shelton, Nebraska, a graduate of Kohns' Tailoring school of Buffalo, New York, also comes very highly recommended and will assist Mrs. Hall in this department.

Kidnapping Trial Near End.

Tacoma, Wn., Sept. 23.—The sensational damage suit Mrs. Lizzie Magnuson is bringing against Bishop Edward J. O'Dea and other prominent Catholics on a charge of kidnapping her daughter is expected to be finished today, so far as the evidence goes. The arguments will commence tomorrow. There was no material evidence today.

Aviation School to Open.

Washington Sept. 23.—Announcement that two army aviation schools are to be established, one in California and the other in Florida is made by General James Allen of the United States army signal corps. He said the equipment of the present school at College park, will be made consisting of ten machines, would be divided between the two stations.

His Daily Square Meal.

The eccentric Dr. Fordyce, a well known professor of chemistry of the eighteenth century, believed that man required only one meal a day, and for twenty years he practiced what he preached. At four he would present himself at Dolly's chophouse, in Paternoster row, and immediately upon his arrival the cook would place a pound and a half of rump steak upon the gridiron. While it was cooking the doctor would amuse himself with some such trifle as half a broiled capon or a plate of fish, and a glass or two of brandy. Then came the steak, with a full accompaniment of bread and potatoes and a quart tankard of strong ale. This was followed by a bottle of port, after which he would stroll to his rooms in Essex street, where he met his class and gave lectures on chemistry.—London Chronicle.

An Impressive Sight.

On his return from his first trip in the United States recently a German physician was asked which one of the sights had made the greatest impression on him. He said: "I saw Niagara falls and on my return to New York came through the picturesque Adirondack region. It was all majestically beautiful, but to a certain extent I was prepared for what I saw. But in a little mountain hamlet, where my friends took me to a Wild West show, I saw an Indian in feathers and war paint drinking beer out of a bottle and holding in his hand a piece of your American pie, which he devoured between gulps. It was a picture so unlike the one I had formed of the Indian that I think it made the greatest impression."—New York Tribune.

One Eyed Giants.

Sir John Mandeville saw all sorts of queer things and wrote about them in his celebrated books of travels. It was in 1338 that the "veracious" Sir John visited a certain group of Isles (yes he called them) which was inhabited by a race of one eyed giants. Of them he says: "In one of these Isles ben folk of grate stature, as gigantes, and they ben hideous for to loke upon. An thel han but on eye, and that is in ye middyl of ye front." He also tells of another one of these "Isles" inhabited by a race of one legged dwarfs, each having three eyes.

An Implosion.

An implosion, as the term indicates, is a bursting outward, a sudden collapse, is the direct opposite of an explosion. The conditions most favorable for the production of an implosion exist at great depth in the sea. At 2,500 fathoms the pressure is, roughly speaking, about two and a half tons to the square inch, a pressure that is several times greater than that exerted by steam upon the piston of a powerful engine.

What Is the Use?

If a man succeeds by acting on your advice he feels that he would have acted as he did without being advised by you, and if he fails because he neglected to heed your advice he blames you for not making it stronger than you did. So what's the use?—Chicago Record-Herald.

Discount.

Angry Citizen—Say! The sleeves and pants legs of this suit are away too short. The Tailor—I told you you were getting 10 per cent off.—New York Globe.

So It Does.

She—A flirtation is always lots of fun. He—Yes, but sometimes it takes a long time to find out just who is having the fun.—Philadelphia Record.

Utilized the Visitor.

Decamps, the famous French painter, had a studio located on the top floor of a building in Paris. A visitor to see the artist paused one day before going up to inquire if M. Decamps were in. Receiving an affirmative reply, he was just starting up the stairs when the concierge called after him:

"As you are about visiting M. Decamps, perhaps you will be so kind as to carry up these trousers that I have just brushed."

When a few moments later, the bell of the studio rang, Decamps opened the door and found on the threshold his friend and patron, the Duke of Orleans, heir to the French throne, who smilingly presented him with his newly brushed trousers.

Mrs. Malaprop.

She was nouveau riche and had a cottage for the summer at the seashore. Her one problem was how to secure a her house guest the "recognized leader in society" in her home town.

The invitation was being verbally extended, and as a last inducement Mrs. Malaprop ended:

"And as you sit on the front porch it's so charming to watch the little white sailed boats fit past and catch Lippuncuts."

EARLY COLONIAL HOUSES.

Some Had Inner Stone Walls to Resist the Indian Raiders.

In America the early colonists had little use for the mason's art, except in the construction of the huge chimney stacks which in any dwelling of considerable size and any pretensions to comfort formed a very considerable part of the structure. The great kitchen fireplace and oven, with smaller hearths in from two to four rooms on each floor, required a very considerable part of the material and skilled labor bestowed upon a colonial homestead in the more northern colonies.

In some sections where the dangers of an attack by Indian raiders were imminent, the wooden walls of the lower story inclosed a stout wall of brick or a kind of rubble masonry. Some of these buildings are still standing and inhabited, although dating back (at least so far as the lower stories are concerned) over two centuries. A very few brick buildings have wholly or in part come down to us from the first years of colonization, and until within the last half century some that preserved the peculiar features of Elizabethan and Stuart types of dwelling and business structures. Much of the brick and about all the great flooring tiles and ornamental tiling were at first imported from Europe, but time and brick of good quality were soon produced in almost every community.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Love Will Find a Way.

The young couple hastened into the union station. It was very patent that they were not married. They were altogether too clumsy for that. They went out onto the platform and stood and talked for a minute, when he took her in his arms and kissed her fondly and again hurried away toward a train.

"What do you think of that?" inquired one of the attaches of the station.

"That looks all right. Why?"

"They do that three or four times a week. They think that everybody else will think that he is going away on a long journey, but he has never got on a train yet. He simply walks around back of the train and disappears. He gets his kiss all right, though."—Louisville Times.

Minuteness of an Atom.

Sir Oliver Lodge once gave a striking illustration of the minuteness of the atom. The amount of gold in sea water, although very small, seems considerable when stated in atoms, for a single drop of sea water contains 50,000,000 atoms of gold. That figure, however, indicates merely one-fiftieth of a grain in a ton of sea water, and it would take 100,000,000 atoms to be visible under a microscope of the highest power.

A Bad Spill.

"Here's a young woman left $500,000 merely for spilling a little sun shine into an old man's life." "Her experience is more fortunate than mine. I once spilled a cup of coffee into an old man's lap and he cut me out of his will altogether."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Satisfied With Sound.

"The man has a wonderful flow of language," said the impressionable girl.

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "He is one of the people who would rather talk than be listened to."—Washington Star.

She Couldn't See It.

Miss—You earn $50 a month. Before I marry you you'll have to earn $50 a week. Mister—B-but with you a month would seem but a week.—New York Globe.

Sometimes Happens.

Mrs. Whyte—I understand she married beneath her. Mrs. Browne—Yes the young man in the flat below.—Somerville Journal.

TUBERCULOSIS IS COSTLY.

Financial Loss Alone Amounts to Over $75,000,000.

Washington, Sept. 23.—About $75,000,000 is the annual financial loss from children who die each year from tuberculosis, according to a statement made today before the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography by Dr. S. F. Knopf, of New York.

"Fifty thousand children die annually from tuberculosis," said Dr. Knopf. "Their average age is 7 years and, figuring the cost to their parents and the community at only $250 per annum, the financial loss represented in $75,000,000. They have died, too, before they were able to give any return to their parents or the community. All this useless sacrifice of money and life is because we do not take care of the child at the right time. Three per cent of all children of school age are tubercular. There are 20,000,000 children attending school and therefore must be at least 600,000 children in need of open-air instruction."

Drs. John F. Anderson and Joseph Goldberger, of the public health service, announced two discoveries regarding measles, by experiments with monkeys.

"Measles is communicated," they said, "not by the scaling off of dried particles of skin, but by sneezing of the patient during the early stages of the disease. Nose and mouth secretions convey the germs. A fine spray is thrown out in coughing or sneezing and child who has not had measles who breathes this spray will become infected. The virus or germ of measles has never been found and is so small it can pass through the pores of a porcelain filter."

Dr. George Reid, of Stafford, England, told the congress that the new national insurance act in Great Britain would be the most potent for extension of public health.

"All insured persons," said Dr. Reid, "and their dependents shall be provided with medical treatment. The law also provides for preventive treatment of tuberculosis."

Dr. Ira S. Wild, of New York, emphasized the importance of beginning the hygienic instruction of school children in the elementary grades and carrying it forward to graduation.

The Fitness of Things.

During a discussion of the fitness of things in general some one asked, "If a young man takes his best girl to the grand opera, spends $8 on a supper after the performance and then takes her home in a taxicab should he kiss her good night?"

An old bachelor who was present growled: "I don't think she ought to expect it. Seems to me he has done enough for her."—Argonaut.

Up Against It.

"There is an old proverb to the effect that 'when one door shuts another one opens,' so cheer up."

"That proverb don't help me none. My wife's mother is visitin' us an' the proverb ought to read, 'When one mouth shuts another one opens.'"—Boston Herald.

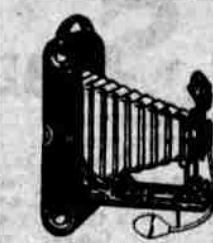

The Way Out of It.

She—So your cousin is thinking of marrying a nice girl and settling down. He—Not exactly. He's thinking of marrying a rich girl and settling up.—Boston Transcript.

Contrary.

"When does your husband find time to do all his reading?" "Usually when I want to tell him something important."—Detroit Free Press.

The Round Up

The first thing to think of when going to the big event is your KODAK. You can afford to forget everything else but don't forget your KODAK. This will be an opportunity of a lifetime to get pictures of the great bucking contests, the bands of Indians and cowboys and everything to show up the western frontier days. If you haven't a kodak let us supply you.

KODAKS $5.00 TO $65.00.
