pd. adv.

H. R. Blackwell is rapidly recovering from an attack of typhoid fever.

Attorney E. Brookings, of Portland, is a guest in the city today on legal business.

J. F. Ravenscroft, a Wallowa lumberman, returned to his home Sunday after visiting here for a day or two.

Mrs. F. H. Green and son Marbel, left last evening for Wendell, Idaho, where they will join Mr. Green and make their future home on a homestead.

L. W. Carnahan, representing the John Deere Plow company, was in the city today calling on his local agent, the M. & M. company. Mr. Carnahan reports trade good all along the line.

Will Marsh, editor of the Wallowa Sun, came out yesterday to attend the Editorial convention at Hot Lake and to join Mrs. Marsh, who has been a guest in the city for the past week.

F. J. Hiltsey of Seattle has been a guest with J. A. Aikine. The Seattle-ites is much impressed with La Grande and was enjoyably surprised at the industries and thrift of the local people.

Howard Davis, the real estate dealer, has moved into the new cottage recently built by N. Nelson, on Washington. The residence is one of the attractive new homes that have been built this year.

J. C. Robinson, secretary of the Oregon Packing company, was in the city yesterday after a visit to Cove, where he contracted for the black cherry crop next year. His company handled a large number of cherry shipments this season.

Will French, the salesman, is home from a trip into the interior, where he went on an extended tour. Crops in Interior Oregon are of the most bountiful sort, and prosperity is the keynote of every resident there, says Mr. French.

H. A. Dalzell, the state secretary for boys' work of the Y. M. C. A., arrived here yesterday from the East, where he has been studying his field of activities in the larger cities, and will be the guest with J. H. Rudd, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. for a day or two.

DYNAMITE AS IT EXPLODES.

It Follows, as Lightning Does, the Line of Least Resistance.

It is the popular impression that dynamite seeks the line of greatest resistance. Place a quantity of black powder on a rock and light it with a fuse. It will flash, simply scorching the stone. Place a piece of dynamite on the same rock, and the rock will be shattered; hence the reasoning that dynamite follows the line of greatest resistance.

Nothing could be further from the truth, however. The black powder takes fire and explodes much more slowly than the dynamite, so that the elastic air that incloses it, as it does everything, gives way gradually and the force is lost in the atmosphere.

With dynamite the explosion has been so sudden, the attack on the air so instantaneous, that for a fraction of a second it actually resists. The force of the dynamite is so tremendous that it cannot wait, and it is turned into the rock, which for the instant becomes the line of least resistance.

An illustration of this may be seen during a display of lightning. A fork of it strikes across the sky. It packs the air so densely that it can no longer make rapid progress in that direction, and it turns aside to follow the line of least resistance. It cannot wait for the air to yield. It is the same with dynamite.—Harper's Weekly.

The Hazel Tree.

A curious survival of the days when the magicians of Europe sought indefatigably for the philosopher's stone is the superstition that attaches to the hazel tree. The old alchemists used to make their divining rods out of hazel twigs, and they fostered the belief that it would mysteriously direct its owner to hidden treasures if it was manipulated with the absolute faith that was required in all those occult enchantments of the middle ages. As time went on the "rod of Jacob," as a branch of hazel was universally known, gathered new powers. Not only would it lead to the discovery of buried boards, but it would also act as an infallible agent in locating runaway servants and escaped criminals. It was a sure guide to underground springs as well and was an unfailing charm against the lightning.

Fred—Mamma, our principal says his school days were the happiest days of his life. Do you believe that? Mamma—Certainly. He wouldn't say so if it were not true. Fred—Well, I suppose he played hooky and didn't get caught.

Very.
Friend—Then you had a satisfactory season?
Theatrical Manager—Very. Two of our most antagonistic critics died.—Judge.

Colonel Meets Crank.
Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 30.—"Hell's broke loose 'in Tennessee." Pleading his daughter Julia, 12, wrote a song of the above alluring title and dedicating it to Roosevelt, a crank tried to gain an audience with the colonel here today. He failed.
Ceil Lyon of Texas, whom the crank approached, intimated the title was well chosen. Roosevelt is campaigning in Eastern Tennessee today.
