Where to Go in La Grande.

What Happened to Mary.

The series, "What Happened to Mary," as produced by Edison in collaboration with "The Ladies' World," has proven a most interesting one. Each story is complete in itself and still further relates the adventures of Mary. The second story is entitled "Alone in New York," and appeared in the September number of "The Ladies' World." The corresponding picture will be shown at Elite tonight.

SHERIDY OFFERING.

Consisting of five well balanced photoplays which are of universal interest, this change, "Pathe's Weekly," always popular, is filled with interesting and instructive news pictures. "With the Enemy's Help," a splendid Biograph, was shown as a feature picture at the exhibitors' convention in Chicago recently. The other pictures are universally strong and interesting.

New Vaudeville at Arcade.

Blaisdell & Webster opened to a packed house at the Arcade last night and for good clean fun they are hard to beat. The audience was kept in a continual uproar. If you can't laugh keep away from the Arcade tonight. The picture program for today is excellent. A Gaumont Weekly, an American western picture, a high-class drama by Thanhouser and featuring a hand-colored drama by Gaumont. This is a fine, well-balanced program and is above the ordinary. The management also wishes to call attention to the freshness and perfect condition of all the pictures.

NEWSIE SACRIFICES LEG.

Burned Girl Will Live Because Newsboy Gave Skin To Heal Burns.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 30.—"Operation a success, both patients will recover." This is the bulletin issued at the hospital today where Miss Ethel Smith and William Rugh, the crippled newsboy, are principals in a skin grafting operation. Her back and legs were burned and Rugh allowed skin to be taken off his leg and placed on the girl's body, saving her life. Then his leg was amputated.

Catching Humming Birds.

Just catch a few! We were weeks in catching even one. For more than a year, at odd moments, we tried. Many methods were used—insect nets, birdlime, a spray of water, open windows with flowers inside and, finally, a trap. At last! Could it really be? I hardly dared trust my senses. Yes. It was a humming bird squeak that came from the little bag, and the boy asked if I was the lady who would pay a dollar for a humming bird. It must be! How had he caught it? Under his cap! How strange! And had

It a ruby throat? He wasn't sure. Well, we could find that out.

Doors were closed and locked and screens carefully placed in every window. Then the wonderful bag was cautiously opened. Way down in the bottom crouched the dear, funny little bird, with his bright eyes looking as straight in the face and his long bill pointing at a sharp angle from the wee body. Just a baby one. Would he die of fright? He did not attempt to fly out, so we fore open the side of the bag to where he sat, but he did not move. Then, placing my finger gently under his toes and lifting slowly I beheld the jewel upon my hand—Katharine E. Doherty in the month.

Equal to the Occasion.

Marshal Suvaroff, when receiving a dispatch from the hands of a Russian sergeant who had greatly distinguished himself on the Danube, attempted to confuse the messenger by a series of whimsical questions, but found himself fully equal to the occasion. "How many fish are there in the sea?" asked Suvaroff. "All that are not caught yet," was the answer. "How far is it to the moon?" "Two of your excellency's forced marches," "What would you do if you saw your men giving way in battle?" "I would tell them that there was plenty of whisky behind the enemy's line." Baffled at all points, the marshal ended with "What is the difference between your colonel and myself?" "My colonel cannot make me a lieutenant, but your excellency has only to say the word." "I say it now," answered Suvaroff, "and a right good officer you will be."

A French Verdict.

A stag hunted through the forest of Fontainebleau took refuge in the garden of a certain Mme. Broutillot. The lady's son refused to give the animal up unless paid the sum of 100 francs. The duke of Wellington, who declined to accept the responsibility.

It was a... said the young man, "I have a... the stag."

...of the duke's brought action for heavy damages. Mme. Broutillot counterclaimed. The jury, with perfect gravity and due solemnity, ordered each side to pay the other 80 francs damages!

So much for a French jury.—London Mail

The Earth as Seen From the Moon.

From that surface of the moon which we see the earth is always visible, clearly marked with clouds, continents, oceans and polar snows, says Popular Science. The earth forms a huge luminary, passing through phases, just like those of our moon, from new to full, and then again to new, but the outline of her globe is always marked by a ring of brilliant light—namely, the stars of the stars behind her, diffused and shining in her atmosphere. Yet, to the dweller on the moon, neither the incomparable splendor of the sun nor that great flood of earth shine can veil the eternal glitter of the constellations in heavens black with a darkness of which our blackest night can give no true idea.

The Pandects of Justinian.

The pandects of Justinian, the most complete body of Roman laws ever collected, were supposed to be lost, but in 1137, when Amalfi was taken and plundered by the Pisans, a private soldier found a copy, which he sold to an officer for a few pence. The value of the discovery was soon apparent, and the precious volume was taken to Pisa and stored in the city library. When Pisa was stormed by the Florentines in 1415 the precious volume was captured and taken to Florence, where it was placed in the library of the Medici.—London Graphic.

Wellington's Integrity.

The Duke of Wellington was noted for his rigid integrity. Here is an instance which occurred in reference to his large estate. Some farm adjoining his lands was for sale, and his agent negotiated for him for the purchase. Having concluded the business, he went to the duke and told him he had made a capital bargain. "What do you mean?" asked the duke. "Why, your grace, I have got the farm for so much, and I know it to be worth at least so much more." "Are you quite sure of that?" "Quite sure, your grace, for I have carefully surveyed it." "Very well, then; pay the gentleman from me the balance between what you have already given and the real value of the estate."

Strong Circumstantial Evidence.

A young wife was in tears a few mornings ago when her mother called. When asked what was the matter she replied that her husband was out late the night before and had been to a drinking party. "What makes you think he had been to a drinking party?" asked the mother. "He came home," sobbed the young wife, "wearing a phonograph horn for a hat."—Kansas City Star

The company is expected to answer Thursday. The company has asked the labor leaders to wait till that date before taking action.
