brutality. She grew to hate him and deceive him. One of her lovers, Borgevsky, was shot by her husband and died in her arms. Another, a Russian officer named Stahl, committed suicide and it is alleged that he did so at her instigation. Her brother-in-law, the younger Tarnovski, also committed suicide.

In 1903 the Countess met Prilukoff, a Moscow lawyer, who deserted his wife and family, embezzled his clients' money, and traveled through Europe with her. On their voyages they met Naumoff, a neurotic young man of twenty-one, who also came under her spell. Later she encountered Count Namarovski, to whom she became betrothed.

In the summer of 1907 the countess, according to her own account, became tired of her wanderings with her lovers, and began to think of marrying. Prilukoff, she asserted at her trial, suggested that murder was far preferable to matrimony. Then it was that the plot to insure the count's life and then kill him began to be hatched. The first step was to induce him to insure his life in her favor for $100,000.

The next step was the inflaming of Haumoff against Kamarovski, and this was effected in a simple and ingenious manner. A telegram was drafted, addressed to the countess, and signed with Kamarovski's name. It contained the foulest insults against both the countess and Naumoff. This telegram was sent from Vienna to Venice, and telegraphed back to Vienna. There Prilukoff and the countess caused it to be shown to Naumoff, and the latter, in a frenzy of rage, hurried to Venice to take vengeance on the supposed slanderer.

Naumoff made his way to the count's villa early in the morning of Sept. 4, 1907. Brushing past the maid, who opened the door, he strode into the count's bedroom. The latter awakened by his entry, cried out in alarm. Naumoff, without a word, fired at him five times with a revolver, inflicting mortal wounds. Naumoff, his rage spent, confused, helpless and remorseful, made only a half-hearted attempt to escape, and was captured at Verona.

Prilukoff was a witness of the murder. He had shadowed Naumoff to Vienna, watched him enter the villa, and heard the shots. Sure that the deed was done, he returned to Vienna. But the address of the countess was discovered by the Venetian police in the rooms of the murdered man, and both Prilukoff and the countess were arrested. Naumoff, broken in spirit, confessed his crime and told of his passion for the countess after some vain attempts to shield her. Prilukoff sought to commit suicide, but the prison wardens were vigilant and his life was saved. Only the countess preserved an unshaken calm. The trial of the trio of conspirators took place in Venice and consumed nearly six months. All three were convicted. The jury found that Naumoff and the countess were not fully responsible for their acts. They were sentenced to three and eight years' imprisonment respectively. Prilukoff was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured.

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to." writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers.

exhaustive investigation by the Austrian and Russian police, by the confessions of the lovers, Naumoff and Prilukoff, and even by the confession of the Countess herself, which, however, she later denied and retracted.

The Countess Tarnovski, despite her long career of intrigue and adventure, is now but little more than thirty years of age and is said to be as beautiful as ever. She is the daughter of a noble Russian family and was educated in a convent. While still in her teens she eloped with Count Tarnovski, a wealthy man, who after their marriage treated his wife with great
