BILL STONE HERE.

my wife and daughter dictate,” said Mr. Stone.

Now, Stone happens to come from the same pasture as Champ Clark, and Mr. Stone admits that it cut to the quick to see Clark miss the nomination in Baltimore. Mr. Stone was there to nominate Mr. Clark, but he now says that believing in majority rule, he finds it his duty to stay with Wilson, whom he terms was cleanly nominated.

The Missourian eulogizes Wilson as a man of the class of Thomas Jefferson, Martin Van Buren and James A. Garfield, whom he termed “the three great scholars who have occupied the president's chair.” He holds that in this enlightened age it is not necessary for a speaker to discuss in detail the issues of the campaign, because the ordinary person has a clear understanding of the situation if they are readers of the daily papers and magazines.

Lovely Landscapes.

George IV. on one occasion casually entered a private apartment at Windsor castle and encountered, somewhat to his surprise, his valet, who was seated at a table loaded with viands and eating with great avidity.

“Ah!” exclaimed the king. “I was always fond of scenery, and here is a lovely piece of landscape spread out before me.”

The valet smiled feebly, but politely intimated that he did not understand the king's allusion to landscape and scenery.

“Why,” replied the first gentleman of Europe, “do I not see before me a smiling valet with a magnificent gorge?”

The valet thereupon rose and retired, excusing himself to the king on the ground that he had turned suddenly “hill.”—London Tit-Bits.

Dublin Book Pirates.

Dublin is rich in literary associations and during the eighteenth century was a busy publishing center. Some of its enterprises, however, were not of a very reputable kind. Ireland was then outside the copyright laws and English books were “pirated” in Dublin as freely as afterward in America. Some Dublin publishers are said to have kept spies in the London printing houses and by this means were able to issue “pirated” editions of important books coincidentally with and sometimes even before the appearance of the authentic issue.—London Chronicle

Defining a Fathom.

“A fathom,” explained a schoolteacher to her class in mathematics, “is a nautical word used in defining distance. It means six feet. Now, I want some little girl to give me a sentence using the word ‘fathom.’” Instantly a hand shot up. “Well, Mary, you may give your sentence.” Mary stood up proudly. “The reason flies can walk on the ceiling,” said the observant child, “is because they have a fathom!”

Another Farm to be Subdivided

I have the 520-acre farm of E. W. Oliver for sale as a whole or can sell a separate 80-acre tract, two 120-acre tracts and 200 acres, which include the improvements. The price is $100 per acre, one-third cash, the balance on five and ten years. This farm is all high grade sandridge land, in the midst of the choice fruit section of the valley, commercial orchards on all sides of it.

The improvements consist of a large barn that cost $1800, which cannot be duplicated today for the money; seven-room house; deep well, 465 feet inexhaustible supply, 5000 gallon tank. One half mile from Valaria school house, R. F. D., one mile to Conley station where two large warehouses are located; seven miles from La Grande; splendid roads at all times of the year. Mr. Oliver is now residing in Portland and has placed a price on this farm that will interest all who know values.

I have sold two 80-acre tracts on the 960-acre farm which I am subdividing. The price on this tract is $60 per acre. You can pick out what you want. The land speaks for itself. The crop this year shows investment. The 160 acres, with improvements, 40 acres in alfalfa, can be bought for $65 per acre. Most liberal terms.

The Silas Koger 240-acre farm in Cove, one of the choice homes in the county is on my list.

80 acres north of the Iowa school house, a beautiful tract well improved; price $8000.

80 acres east of Island City, rich bottom river land that is well worth the price asked. $75 per acre.

80 acres near Summerville for $3500. In fact the owner is not living on it, does not expect to, and this price can be shaded a little.

40 acres near Summerville, well improved, for $2650.

30-acre farm, near city, for $4500.

20-acre farm, near city, for $4500.

24-acre farm, near city, $6000.

80-acre farm on Ladd Creek, $6000.

160-acre farm, just south of city, $8000.

I have sold seven farms during the last 90 days and the above is only a partial suggestion of my listings. Come in and let us give you detail descriptions, photographs; in many instances some exceptionally easy terms.
