WALLOWA PLOWS THROUGH LOCALS

FRAIL LINE IS PUNCTURED AT WILL.

Heavier Team Has Locals at Mercy After First Half of Game.

Crushing the much lighter La Grande line like tissue paper and mowing down by old-football tactics any defense the little shrimp forwards might adopt, Wallowa high school sent her backs plowing through for touchdowns almost at will in the two last periods of the opening game here Saturday and went away victors 27 to 0. La Grande fought the visitors to a standstill in the first half, savoring a moment of weakness early in the game when Rich got away for a long driving run after skirting his left flank, but the superior weight of the visitors had done its business and toward the close of the game, La Grande was ineffective. While there was no method La Grande might adopt apparently that could execute a score, the local team failed to resort to the punting tactics which if not in the lowering darkness, resultant in fuke touchdowns, would have held the score to a lower figure.

Using close formations and a plowing attack, Wallowa readily kept the La Grande goal in great danger, and the plucky youngsters from home add valiantly on their own goal line twice. Little new football was used by the visitors. Once they got away with a clean forward pass and intercepted two La Grande passes, but the line was so frail that there was too much attraction to make gains there to permit fancy stuff. La Grande on the other hand mixed up a little of everything and with the aid of her diminutive but indeed "shifty backs, got away with some excellent, exciting and intricate runs. It was the cleverest sort of runs that Hunter and Kiddie pulled away with at times for the opposing forwards were pouncing upon them like terriers on a rat before ever they got away, repeatedly. The forward pass was used several times by La Grande for good gains. Lefel, Garrity and Crawley receiving like veterans, though occasionally failures too. These passes originated from puzzling cross and delayed passes, that with a better protecting line, would have dazzled any opponent. Hunter was taken out of the game late in the day after a brilliant run of 40 yards, and like Kiddie, was shifty and slippery, though perhaps the lightest that ever represented an Eastern Oregon high school team. Both did valiant work in carrying the ball but the team lacked stamina, and played spurtily, rushing the ball at times only to lose on downs at critical moments. Forward passes never would and never will advance a ball consistently and open new style football were the only methods La Grande could use to advantage. The fourth down was often used. Captain Bohenkamp was the lion on defense and his tackling was not only brilliant but consistent and persistent and with the help of Winters the new center formed a duo of scintillating stars who knew what to do and when to do it. The balance of the line displayed a percentage of grit and determination and received such a trouncing that their ignorance of the best methods of attack and defense is excusable but piteous. Outweighed, except at right tackle, many pounds to the man, the green line took their trouncing like heroes and fought more valiantly and more determinedly to the last down than on the first. But Wallowa has a team well balanced, fairly fast and all willing exponents of the game, that against a weak line is unbeatable. On the other hand the Wallowa phalanx "standing up" attack would collapse before a strong line. The presence of Snider and Watson would have prevented a Wallowa score no doubt. The visitors seldom skirted the local ends for material gains, but their everlasting and effective line smashes told the story. On the defense, Tulley and Johnson at right end were luminaries; Powers and Rich the same on offense, the former using a straight tackle plunge with deadly effect and Rich and Johnson were perhaps the best ground gainers for the visitors.

Ralston's kicking snore, aided by first class mixing of plays by Geddes often kept the ball out of danger, but Geddes didn't find any holes in the visiting line because there were none. Williams of Baker referred and was fair to all. Olson was umpire and Neil linesman.

THE "GOBLIN FRIAR."

One of the Specters That Are Said to Haunt Newstead Abbey.

Newstead abbey, the home of Lord Byron, has the reputation of being haunted by more than one specter, and many curious noises and strange sights have been heard and seen by residents and visitors there. But the best known and most noted specter connected with the place and immortalized in Byron verse is the "Goblin Friar." The particular chamber which this specter is supposed especially to frequent and which is known par excellence as the "haunted chamber" adjoins Byron's bedroom. Lord Byron and many others not only believed in the existence of the Black Friar, but asserted that they had really seen it. It did not confine its visitations, however, to the "haunted chamber," but at night walked the cloisters and other portions of the abbey.

A monk arrayed in cowl and beads and dusky garb appeared.

Now in the moonlight and now lapsed in shade, With steps that trod as heavy, yet unheard.

This apparition is the evil genius of the Byrons, and its appearance portends misfortune of some kind to the member of the family to whom it appears. Lord Byron fully believed that he beheld this apparition a short time before the greatest misfortune of his life, his ill starred union with Miss Millbanke. Alluding to his belief in these things, he said:

I merely mean to say what Johnson said-- That in the course of some six thousand years All nations have believed that from the dead

A visitant at intervals appears, And what is stranger upon this strange head

Is that whatever bars the reason rears Gained such beliefs there's something stronger still In its behalf, let those deny who will. --Kansas City Star.

HAYDN AND THE ROD.

When the Budding Composer Was Flogged by Royal Command.

An amusing incident of the healthy boyhood of the great composer, Joseph Haydn, is given by Mary Maxwell Moffat in her biography of the Austrian empress, Maria Theresa.

When von Reutter became choirmaster of St. Stephen's cathedral he had Joseph Haydn among his pupils.

During a visit to the Hungarian Prince Esterhazy, in 1773, Maria Theresa took occasion to say a word of praise to Haydn, who had composed the music of the opera given in her honor and had conducted the performance. She expressed the conviction that she had seen him before, although she could not remember the occasion.

"The last time your majesty was pleased to take notice of me," said Haydn, "you ordered me a good thrashing."

"That does not sound like me," rejoined the empress. "How did it happen?"

Then Haydn told of a Whiteantide when, with other pupils of Von Reutter, he had been brought to Schoenbrunn to sing in the chapel. Between the services the boys took to clambering over the scaffolding of the new wings of the palace. The empress caught sight of them and sent word forbidding the dangerous sport. But the attraction of the scaffolding was irresistible. On the following day the boys were again risking their necks. When Maria Theresa expostulated with Von Reutter his surmise that the ringleader was "that young scamp, Joseph Haydn," led her to suggest that the rod be used to improve his memory.

The Glowworm Cavern.

The greatest wonder of the antipodes is the celebrated glowworm cavern, discovered in 1891 in the heart of the Tasmanian wilderness. The cavern or caverns (there appears to be a series of such caverns in the vicinity, each separate and distinct) are situated near the town of Southport, Tasmania, in a limestone bluff, about four miles from Ida bay. The appearance of the main cavern is that of an underground river, the entire floor of the subterranean passage being covered with water about a foot and a half in depth. These wonderful Tasmanian caves are similar to all caverns found in limestone formation, with the exception that their roofs and sides literally shine with the light emitted by the millions of glowworms which inhabit them.

Strange Cure For Lunacy.

Our forefathers were so fond of the whip that they seem to have regarded it as a cure for lunacy and even for smallpox. The accounts of a Huntingdonshire parish under date 1691 have the entry, "Pd. in charges taking up a distracted woman, watching her and whipping her next day, 8s. 6d." and a few years later eightpence is paid for "whipping two people yt had the smallpox."--London Standard.

How, indeed?

Small Boy--Sister said to ask if you had any invisible ink. New Drug Clerk (after looking among some bottles)--I guess we haven't, at least I don't see any. Small Boy (contemptuously)--Huh! How do you expect to see it if it's invisible?--Chicago News.

A Title as Long as a Preface.

Many old pamphlets are distinguished by titles as long as prefaces. The author of one, published in 1646, evidently did not share in the modern editor's enthusiasm for short title headings, for this is the name under which his publication was ushered into the world: "Scotland's publick Acknowledgement of Gods Just Judgment upon their Nation for their Frequent Breach of Faith, Leagues, and Solemn Oathes made to their Neighbours of England in former ages, to gratifie their Treacherous Confederates of France."--London Globe.

SADDLE MAKING IN MEXICO.

Entire Families Often Take Part in the Home Industry.

The making of saddles, while in the aggregate an important local Mexican industry, is purely a home affair, the artisans for the most part working independently in their own homes and often pressing the entire family into service. The manager of the largest wholesale and retail dealers in saddles in Mexico City says that all the saddles which they handle are made locally at home by hand, and he estimates that more than 100 families in the city are similarly employed.

Many of these handmade saddles are handsomely carved and most creditable in appearance, although the leather as a rule is far inferior to that used in American saddles. It is the practice of retailers to furnish the trees, leather and fittings of all kinds to the workmen and pay them for their actual labor. The labor is the cheapest item entering into saddle construction, many entire families being satisfied with a wage of 50 cents to $1 American currency per day.

The saddletrees used for the better grade of saddle are imported from the state of Colima, the cheaper grade of saddles using a tree of local make. No American saddles or saddletrees are carried in stock by local merchants, but are ordered from time to time according to the specifications of the individual purchaser.--Trade and Consular Reports.

TROUBLES OF THE EAR.

Many of Them Are Caused by Abuses of Some Kind.

The best way to care for the ear is to study the things not to do. It is one of the most independent of organs, knowing very well how to take care of itself. If it is duly respected little trouble or none will result. In cases where something unforeseen goes wrong a physician should be consulted at once.

Almost all troubles of the ear are due to abuses of some kind. The wax seems to worry a great many people, and in their concern they usually manage to seriously interfere with its functions. In the healthy ear the wax, or cerumen, is a thin yellowish fluid that thickens into a paste as it dries. Nature provides for its natural exit from the ear passage by uniting it with the tiny flakes of dead skin which fall outward unnoticed either by seeing or feeling. Thus wax does not accumulate in a healthy ear, which has just enough to make sticky the stiff little hairs that grow in the passage.

Instruments should never be poked into the ear by the inexperienced nor wads of material continually mopped and squeezed into the opening for cleansing. Usually such treatment induces an increase or caking of wax. Hot water is the best solvent for wax, 105 to 115 degrees F. If the need of it is imperative gently syringe the ear with it. Cotton plugs in the ear are useful at times, but should be used no more than absolutely necessary, for they obstruct the canal and interfere with the natural way of casting off wax.--Exchange.

First Woman Wireless Operator.

The women of the state of Washington are pushing forward in politics and the industries in what may be considered by anti-suffragists in a most aggressive way. Miss Anna Malley has been nominated for governor by a referendum ballot of the Socialist party, and Mrs. Minnie Parks has been re-nominated for state treasurer. It is predicted that Miss Malley is likely to

BAND PROFITS BY CARNIVAL

ABOUT $250 IS REALIZED FROM PERCENTAGES.

Outstanding Debts Are Cleared by Coming of Carnival.

Folding up their tents and slipping away in the dead of night, the Parker shows are gone to Pocatello, their next stop. The wind-up night that it was a stormy night and very cold.

The La Grande band clears in the neighborhood of $250 on the week's percentages. Gross percentages were more than that but there was considerable expense attached, reducing the net proceeds to about $250. Of this amount, however, the band is indebted for over $200 so that a trifling nest egg remains for the band to work with.

Tennessee Odd Fellows Gather.

Clarkeville, Tenn., Oct. 21.--From all parts of Tennessee, members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows are arriving in Clarkeville to participate in the annual meetings of the grand encampment and the grand lodge. The former will convene tomorrow and the grand lodge will meet on Wednesday. The Rebekahs, the women's auxiliary of the order, will be in session from Tuesday until Friday.

RELIABLE FOOT WARMERS

This is the season when a good hot water bottle is appreciated. If you haven't a good one, now is a particularly good time to procure one. We have a new, fresh stock right from the bakers. Every bottle has years of wear in it if it is properly cared for.

Our higher priced bottles are guaranteed. The guarantee means that you are to have a new bottle if the one you purchase gives out on account of imperfect construction. All of our bottles are made upon honor and no matter what you pay you are insured full value for your money. 75c to $2.00.
