WHO SHOULD GO TO COLLEGE

"Training is training irrespective of the place where or circumstances under which it is received," writes Joseph Schafer in his article, "Who Should Go to College and Why," published in the October number of the Review of Reviews. Some day he believes colleges and universities will recognize this and will admit pupils, not because they have covered so many units of preparatory work, but simply on a showing that they can profit by the higher courses. Already, he says, the essential oneness of work in school and work out of school is being realized. He looks forward to the day when boys and girls can meet entrance requirements by correspondence study, night school, private study, practical experience; in fact by anything which provides them with the intellectual basis to profit by the higher studies offered in colleges.

The fact that Mr. Schafer is profes-

A Marvelous Escape.

"My little boy had a marvelous escape," writes P. F. Bastians of Prince Albert, Cape of Good Hope. "It occurred in the middle of the night. He got a very severe attack of croup. As luck would have it, I had a large bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. After following the directions for an hour and twenty minutes he was through all danger." Sold by all dealers.

sor of history in the University of Oregon adds to the authority of his article. In a very interesting manner he traces the rise of practical studies, such as agriculture, manual training, etc., in the high schools. The prophecy which he makes is based on the fact that a great middlewestern university out of the 14 units required for entrance is permitting four of these to be vocational in character. He argues that with the further growth of vocationalism in the high schools the higher institutions of learning in time must make this ratio even more liberal and give still greater credits to vocational subjects.

"The high school is no longer a fitting school for the college," he writes. "It is a school fitting for life—an institution in which young persons can complete their formal training for participation in our intricate and industrial civilization. A few of these go on to college, the number is in growing disproportion to those who pursue the various high school courses as ends in themselves."

If this is true and all current signs indicate that it is, then the colleges, unless they liberalize their entrance requirements, must look elsewhere for their students. But there is no place else to look. It follows then that as practical courses dominate in high school work the college in the end will be forced to recognize them.

SUPPORT FROM ALL SOURCES.

Do not be surprised if on next Tuesday Col. Roosevelt is elected president of the United States.

Yes, it would be a marvelous thing—a seemingly impossible thing. But the last few days has been working great changes, or rather being an strong support that has heretofore been an unknown quantity.

Here is one illustration: John Dewey, the greatest philosopher of America and Albert Bushnell Hart, the greatest historian of America today, are sending out letters over their own signatures asking for support for Roosevelt in the name of humanity. They reiterate the good points of Roosevelt's platform and call attention to the fact that no such planks were ever before adopted by a political leader.

These letters are from men who are authority in their different lines and will have weight.

We repeat again that it is not an impossibility for the Colonel to be ected, and in fact it is now a probability.

The Eastern states where manufacturing concerns thrive are dreadfully afraid of Wilson on the tariff; they realize President Taft's election is an impossibility and whether they admire the Bull Moose or not, it is a matter of self-preservation to vote for him, for he is thrughly pledged to tariff where tariff is needed.

Instead of the West being the great Roosevelt field, scenes have shifted to the East and apparently the Atlantic coast is going to roll up a tremendous vote for him.

The pre-eminence of the Gossard lace front corset is today a demonstrated dress fact.

The Gossard ranks as the fashionable corset of the world. It is the original and perfect front lacing corset and affords the truest union of style and healthfulness, something which has heretofore never been accomplished. It is the only corset that adds to the general beauty of line—a closed habit back that is unrivaled in distinctiveness.

A complete line always on hand, also a line of lace front Brassieres and pads.
