

DR. COOK AT BAKER SAT.

INTERESTED AUDIENCE HEARS GREAT SPEECH.

Story of His Dash to the Pole Is Convincing and Descriptive.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the polar explorer, told his story of the discovery of the North Pole to a small audience at the Baker theatre Saturday evening, but those who were there heard one of the most interesting talks ever delivered from the lecture platform in this city, no matter what may have been their opinion as to the real merits of Cook's claims, says the Baker Democrat. To hear first handed the story of this man, who even if he did not reach the pole (and those who heard him probably believe that he did), was a real pleasure, for Cook's experiences in the Arctic were well set forth and illustrated with actual pictures of the scenes in the frozen north, which held the audience in rapt attention.

He was particularly bitter in his denunciation of Commodore Peary, and branded him as a man who would stoop to anything to secure his own ends. Cook paid tribute to the two Eskimo boys who accompanied him on his last dash to the pole, and gave them as much credit as himself for his final success.

It is generally predicted that we are about to experience the greatest era of prosperity that we have ever had. A natural source of profit is real estate; especially is this true in a locality such as La Grande, which has one of the brightest futures before it of any town in the whole Northwest.

There are a great many people of limited means who have never made any investments in real estate, because they were under the impression that it took a great deal of money to make the investment. This obstacle has been removed by a plan we have adopted on some of our properties, so that it is possible now to invest in real estate with a very little money. We have gone further than that, and have adopted a method by which your investment is absolutely guaranteed. If you will watch this space, you will be able to learn a great deal about real estate investments on the installment plan, that will be of lasting benefit to you.
