Declare War on Colds.

A crusade of education which aims that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:

- "Don't sit in a draughty car."
- "Don't sleep in hot rooms."
- "Don't avoid fresh air."
- "Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Over eating reduces your resistance."
- To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by all druggists.

VACCINE FOR LOCAL USERS

GOVERNMENT WILL SUPPLY THE BLACKLEG VACCINE.

Pendleton Headquarters Acts for the Government.

Methods by which Union county stockmen can secure blackleg vaccine free of cost, and the best there is made, is detailed in the Rural Spirit, this issue. It refers the prospective user to the Pendleton doctor, who will order the vaccine sent. However, Dr. P. A. Charlton of this city will convey the request to the Pendleton headquarters if the farmers so wish it. The Rural Spirit says of this vaccine:

In view of the fact that some vaccine has proved ineffectual for black leg, Dr. Pinkerton of the Animal Industry Department of the United States government with headquarters at Pendleton, Oregon, informs the Rural Spirit that black leg vaccine can be secured from his office free of application. The only requirement of the government is that the party on whose stock it is used must make a written report of the results of the vaccinations. Dr. Pinkerton says that stockmen in Eastern Oregon are using the vaccine in considerable quantities; that nearly all the large outfits vaccinate calves or yearlings as a precautionary measure, with good success. Occasionally his office is without any of the remedy for a few days, but a telegraphic request will bring it from Washington in four days. The government's instructions are to use black leg vaccine within three months from the time it is prepared, although it is usually good for at least another three months.

WOMEN HEAR ENTHUSIASM

PRESIDENT OF FEDERATED CLUBS ADMONISHED.

Excerpts From Annual Address Delivered in Portland Given.

For the benefit of local women clubs' members who could not attend the Portland gathering of federated clubs of the state recently, the Observer appends herewith liberal excerpts from the address of the president, Sarah A. Evans. She said in part in her annual address:

"In point of time the 12 months that have elapsed since our last meeting is only a little span, but for the women of Oregon it has cast a bridge into eternity; it has laid the foundation for our better weal or woe, and it has brought into the lives of the women of Oregon the responsibilities of state, made glorious through the liberty of unrestricted citizenship."

The abstract question of woman suffrage was not germane to the work of the Oregon Federation and the president of the General Federation, in her opinion, was right in her much criticized ruling preventing it from made an issue at the convention at San Francisco.

"The individual club, unless its constitution forbade, can endorse and measure it sees fit, but a federation must ever respect the minority. Hence your president never deemed it wise to introduce suffrage as an issue, in to this organization. But as an issue suffrage in Oregon has passed. It is no longer a matter of whether we approve of it or not, it is a condition to be accepted, and the question now is how are we going to use it now that it is germane to every line of club activity?"

"It means a new tool to work with, a precious opportunity whose possibilities are as fathomless as the sea. But we must also realize that it is a two edged sword which may cleave both ways in the hands of the careless, indifferent or ignorant."

"Today the responsibility of citizenship is upon you, and henceforth it will be the silent force to be used and reckoned with in all our future deliberations. The day of 'influence' has set; the dawn of action has begun. The men of Oregon no longer hold the helm alone; our hands are upon the wheel with theirs, and it remains for us to prove the wisdom of being removed from the undesirable classes. How can we do this? Only through education, wisdom and due appreciation of our obligations."

"No more opportune time could have come for the women of the Pacific coast to share the responsibilities of government than the present. Portentous as the past year has been, it is but the gateway to the most momentous event in the history of the world—the opening of the Panama canal next year.

"There is not a question of government, economics, society or industry that it will not effect the world over. It will take Oregon to the doors of the old world and oftener to its back than to its front door; it will bring into our state an immigration never dreamed of before, and give us some problems of education, food, housing, disease and crime that have never before touched our borders. These six factors make up the problem of our changing conditions."

"By education alone can we hope to hold the supremacy even in our own America, and that must be the education of the hand as well as of the head, for the boy or girl that leaves school unacquainted with the bread and butter battle of life will be a failure, and without value to his community."

"This brings us to the second factor in our problem—the labor questions that are looming larger and larger on our horizon. As the hordes of unskilled labor begin to crowd our industries, as these industries increase and begin to demand cheaper labor of women and children; with the oriental trade in front of us and the exhausted east back of us, the labor question will intrude itself into the home of rich and poor alike, and Oregon will be no exception, and these are the questions well worth the consideration of our women."

"Housing does not seem of much importance in this big, broad state of magnificent distances; neither was it in the limitless east of a century ago, but today it is one of stupendous magnitude to them, and our concern should be to profit by their experiences. I have set before you what, as your president, consider the most important matters to engage your attention the coming year. Realizing that we are no longer militant citizens with the rank of noncombatants and believing that the Oregon club women stand ready to fulfill to the uttermost their duty we offer the following recommendations for your consideration:

"Through the secretary of the state library commission, the federation is having prepared a study outline on civil government. It will extend to every branch of municipal, state and national government, and is designed to cover several years' work if it is so desired. It will give special attention to what is known as the 'Oregon system'."

"We recommend that this be made the basis of your study. We earnestly recommend that a keener interest be given—not only in the city beautiful to the clean and sanitary city, but in the quality and integrity of the city."

"That the clubs endeavor to bring about closer relation between the teachers and the mothers;

"That they give every assistance in their power to the school garden movement and encourage the establishment of playgrounds in the small as well as in the large towns.

"That the club women make the establishment of vocational training in their schools a part of their educational work."

"That they assist in the effort to bring about dress reform by their daughters setting the example of more simple dressing in school, and decency in street dressing by exercising more modesty in their own costumes."

"That we support every reasonable measure for the reduction in the cost of living, and that we co-operate with other states in securing a standard of weights and measures, and a net weights clause to the Oregon pure food law."
