BABIES UNDER THE SPOUT.

In Simla They Water the Youngsters to Keep Them Quiet.

The native mothers in the neighborhood of Simla, in India, have a curious practice of putting their babies' heads under a spout of water in order to send the youngsters to sleep and to keep them quiet. When a new cart road was made some years ago in the locality mentioned there was a halting place, where rows of such children might be seen in a grove close to the road.

The water of a hill spring was so adjusted as to furnish a series of little spouts, each about the thickness of one's little finger. Opposite each spout was a kind of earth pillow and a little trough to carry away the water. Each child was so laid that one of the water spouts played on the top of its head, and the water then ran off into the trough.

An English official testifies that the process was most successful. There never were such quiet and untroublesome babies as those under the spouts. The people were unanimous in asserting that the water did the children no harm, but that, on the contrary, it benefited and invigorated them. In fact, they seemed to think that a child not subjected to this process must grow up soft brained and of little account.—Harper's Weekly.

ORIGIN OF CINDERELLA.

The Dainty Footed Damsel Who Became a King's Wife.

It has been said, "Not one girl in a thousand knows the origin of the friend of her childhood, Cinderella."

Her real name was Rhodope, and she was a beautiful Egyptian maiden who lived 670 years before the common era and during the reign of one of the twelve kings of Egypt. One day Rhodope ventured to bathe in a clear stream near her home, leaving her shoes, which were very small, lying on a bank. An eagle, passing above, caught sight of the little sandals and, mistaking them for a toothsome tidbit, pounced down and carried off one in his beak.

The bird unwittingly played the part of fairy godmother, for, flying over Memphis, where the king was dispensing justice, it let the shoe fall directly at the king's feet. Its size, beauty and daintiness immediately attracted the royal eye, and the king determined to know the wearer of so cunning a shoe.

Messengers were sent through all the kingdom in search of the foot that it would fit. Rhodope was finally discovered, the shoe placed on her foot, and she was carried in triumph to Memphis, where she became the queen of King Psammetichus.

Chesterfield's Love Letter.

A famous love letter, cautious and clever, is that written in 1681 by Philip, earl of Chesterfield, to Lady Russell: "Madam—The dullness of this last cold season doth afford nothing that is new to divert you; only here is a report that I faint would know the truth of, which is that I am extremely in love with you. Pray let me know if it be true or no, since I am certain that no one but yourself can rightly inform me, for if you intend to use me favorably and do think I am in love with you I most certainly am so, but if you intend to receive me coldly and do not believe that I am in love I also am sure that I am not. Therefore let me entreat you to put me out of a doubt which makes the greatest concern of "Dear madam, your most obedient faithful servant."

"CHESTERFIELD."

Art Is Long Distance.

An American artist walked out of his house, closed the door with unusual care and descended the steps. In his hand was a satchel containing his paints and brushes and a change of socks.

At the gate he met a bright eyed, ragged little boy carrying a basket filled with scarlet strawberries, purple dewberries, crimson radishes, pale young onions, verdant spinach and glistening lettuce from a backster's wagon near.

"Vegetables?" the boy asked. "Berries?" "No," replied the artist, brushing past. "I am on my way to sunny Italy to paint water color studies of picturesque peasant children."

And he ran for the boat.—Newark News

New York's First Sidewalk.

The first sidewalk in New York was laid by a woman, Mrs. Samuel Provoost, about 1716. She was an importer and merchant and laid the sidewalk for the convenience of her customers. She had importuned the authorities to do it, but they refused, saying it was impossible. After her object lesson paving and curbing gradually came to, but for some time her sidewalk was so famous that people journeyed even from Philadelphia to see it.

Tombstone Inscriptions.

Three of the commonest tombstone inscriptions are "In the midst of life we are in death," "His end was peace," "He tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." The sentiment of each is comforting and consolatory, but none comes from the Bible.
