WALLOWA AFTER NEW CHARTER

WALLOWA AS A CITY GROWS APACE.
Old Charter Inadequate and New One Proposed.

La Grande's charter has been patterned after by Wallowa, as testifies the following from the Wallowa Sun: The proposed new charter for the city of Wallowa was passed by the council at a special meeting last Monday night, and will be submitted to the voters of the city at a special election to be held March 18th. The new charter is very similar to the one adopted a few years ago by La Grande and is said to be one of the best obtainable. The La Grande charter has been in force since 1909, and is highly recommended by the officials of that city. The adoption of a new charter in Wallowa has been under advisement by the council for the past two years. Extensive investigation into different charters has been made with the result that the proposed charter as passed by the council last Monday evening contains the good points of many, and at the same time many bad features have been eliminated.

The proposition of adopting a new charter was first brought to the attention of the council while J. P. Morelock was mayor, and it was during his administration that the present form of charter was decided upon. Work of perfecting it was begun, and has been carried over into the administration of Mayor E. A. Holmes. Mr. Holmes has given considerable time and attention to the new measure, and after its passage Monday night, stated that he was satisfied Wallowa would have one of the best charters of any city in the state, provided the proposed charter is adopted by the voters March 18th.

Wallowa was incorporated as a town in 1898, and adopted a charter which at that time was adequate for all purposes, and which was identical with a number of charters adopted by other towns in the state during the same year. Enterprise was incorporated and adopted the same charter at about the same date as the adoption of the Wallowa charter. These charters are all contained in the session laws of Oregon for the year 1898.
