THE LAW OF THE WEST

Three Reel KAY-BEE

Arcade Today

The feature for today and tomorrow at the Arcade theatre is "The Law of the West."

A colossal presentation of early pioneer days when the only law in the west was administered by the hardy emigrants. The same company is used in this film as in "Custer's Last Fight" and "The Invaders." The scenes are picturesque, with its long wagon trains drawn by oxen, the cast is overwhelming, and the situations are tense and thrilling.

It is a first class production in every way.

The Gaumont Weekly shown today is more interesting than ever and the program closes with two different acts of vaudeville, Tuscan Joe in Indian songs, a short lecture and his act closes with a very realistic Indian dance.

Fredrick the Great, the magician, is very clever. His palming and card tricks are above the average. He caused rabbits, pigeons, cards, etc. to do seemingly impossible stunts. Tonight he will introduce several new tricks.

PRETTY CHRISTMAS TABLE.

An Old Fashioned Party For the Children.

The arrangement of a table at a Yuletide party was quite unusual, inasmuch as it was an old fashioned square one, lengthened to accommodate twelve children. It was pushed back against the wall, and at the back was the largest sized Yule log candy box, resting on a bed of holly and mistletoe.

On top of the log was a doll dressed as a jester, called the "Lord of Mischief," and attached to the front end of the log by red ribbons were six dolls dressed to represent the first six months of the year. Following after the log were six more figures dressed like the last six months. At each plate were a holly paper covered horn and a wee tree lit with red wax tapers.

The children were to blow out the candles, making a wish for each one. If they go out with the very first puff the wish will come true. A white and red Christmas ribbon goes to each plate, fastened by a spray of holly. Then each child looks at the dolls and says which one he or she thinks represents the month in which they were born.

If there should be two in the same month the one who is the oldest gets the doll for that month. As there is one for each guest, a satisfactory adjustment is easily made. The Yule log also contains small favors for each guest.
