SECONDHAND ORANGE SKINS.

Sweepings of English Theaters Are Sold to the Jammakers.

Now and then one sees in the English papers advertisements announcing that so-and-so has a large stock of orange skins for sale. As a matter of recommendation as to quality the advertisement concludes with the statement that they are from such and such a music hall.

There is a big business in second-hand orange skins, lemon peel, etc., on the other side of the Atlantic. Most of them are bought by makers of jams and marmalade. This was brought out when there was an investigation of the preserving industry in England.

In certain portions of the theaters and music halls of London and other large British cities the seats are not reserved. Admittance to the pit is generally sixpence. Once a person leaves his seat it is immediately grabbed by some one else. In order to get a good seat one must come early. One grows hungry as the hours go by before the performance ends. The favorite sustenance of those who sit in these cheap seats is oranges.

They consume them in large quantities and throw the skins on the floor. After each performance the skins are carefully gathered up and sold to dealers.—New York Sun

FROZEN BY FISH POWER.

Truthful Tale About Making Ice Cream In Nova Scotia.

Not all the fish prevaricators live in the United States, according to the Mariner's Advocate. An editor recently received the following letter:

"I have read an interesting account of singing fish in your paper. It recalled to me the memory of a rather remarkable fish we have in Nova Scotia. It is known as the 'frost fish,' because it may be frozen like a lump of ice, but if placed in water in that condition it soon thaws out and swims around as vigorously as ever. The natives make use of this property to make ice cream. The fish is caught, frozen and placed in the cream. In thawing out it freezes the cream, and its movements at the same time beat the mixture, making it smooth."

Taking them by and large, from Moosehead lake to Puget sound and from the upper Mississippi to the gulf, we have some very capable and industrious fish lars in this country. But we hand the reel and rod over to Nova Scotia. We have talent in this country, but Nova Scotia is the abode of genius.

The Apostle of Greenland.

The conversion of the Eskimo in that remote and bleak dependency of Denmark, Greenland, was agitated as early as 1710 by Hans Egede, who has become historic as the apostle of Greenland. In that year he published as a pamphlet "A Proposition For Greenland's Conversion and Enlightenment." This was welcomed with no great warmth by the clergy and was violently opposed by mercantile interests. In four years he had succeeded to such an extent that he founded a training college for missionaries in Copenhagen. May 3, 1721, he sailed for Greenland with a small party of mission workers. He was greatly disappointed to find that the Norse colony, left for many years to its own resources, had wholly vanished. He turned, therefore, all his efforts to the conversion of the Eskimo and met with marked success, becoming bishop in 1740. In this office and its trying duties he was succeeded by his son, Paul.—New York Sun

The Harmony of Colors.

The principle that the sensation of white results from the equal excitement of sensations produced by the three fundamental radiations is deduced naturally from an analysis of the rules of the harmony of colors. Colored lights do not focus at the same point. Therefore the eye must select different distances at the same time in order to see when different colored surfaces touch. The difference of refrangibility of the different colored rays causes some colors to stand out and others to stand back. Red is the most "flying" or "tapering" of the colors, a red object always appearing to be farther away than a blue object, though both are at the same place, and in the same light.—Harper's.

Manufacturing the Truth.

A gentleman was staying at an English country house, when, hearing a great clatter below one morning, he looked out and saw a couple of grooms holding one of the servant maids on a horse, which they led with difficulty once round the yard. He asked them what it all meant.

"Well, you see, sir," said they, "we're going to take the horse to market to be sold, and we want to be able to say that he has carried a lady."

Didn't Care For the Money.
"You advertised for a young lady to be married in a cage of lions."
"That's right. Fifty plunks. Where's your young man?"
"Don't you provide the man? What do you suppose was my object in going into this affair?"—Pittsburgh Post

BOY FALLS 10 FEET; UNHURT

THOMAS CONRAD HAS REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

After Quail When Foot Slips, He Crashing to Frozen Ground.

Lone Star, March 4.—(Special).—Thomas Conrad, aged 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Conrad, fell out of a hay loft to the frozen ground 10 feet below yesterday. His brother picked him up, believing him dead, but finally Thomas gained consciousness and it was discovered he was merely bruised a little on his right side on which he fell. The boys were catching young quail out of the loft where Thomas' brother was going to put hay and the little quail he held got away and fell to the ground. When Thomas went to climb down to get it he slipped and fell, and his escape from serious injury is deemed to be remarkable.

E. J. Conrad, C. E. Kennan and Frank E. Griner were visitors in the city Saturday.

W. E. McClure stayed in the city Saturday night to attend the Odd Fellows' lodge, of which he is a member.
