Gives Warning of a Storm.

In the bay of Biscay frequently during the autumn and winter in calm weather a heavy sea gets up and rolls in on the coast four and twenty hours before the gale which causes it arrives and of which it is the prelude. In this case the wave action, generated on the other side of the Atlantic by the wind, travels at a much greater rate than that of the body of disturbed air and thus gives warning of the coming storm.

So Unreasonable.

"She's been very busy telling me how to rear my baby."

"Well?"

"But she got into a perfect panic when I asked her to take care of the child for a couple of days. You know I was suddenly called out of town."—Washington Herald.

A Frank Admission.

"I suppose you are interested in reform," said the conscientious citizen. "No," replied Farmer Cornstossel; "I approve of it. But I can't say that it's generally expressed in a way that makes it as interesting as the continued stories."—Washington Star.

Would He?

Cashleigh—You wouldn't marry Miss Roxy for her money, would you, Upson? Upon Downes—How else can I get it?—London Answers.

He who despises small things never becomes rich.—Danish Proverb.

Stevenson on Invalidism.

Robert Louis Stevenson, himself the most heroic of invalids, would have agreed with Sir George Birdwood in his contempt for the valetudinarian. "To forego all the issues of living in a parlor with a regulated temperature," he writes, "as if that were not to die a hundred times over, and for ten years at a stretch! As if it were not to die in one's own lifetime, and without even the sad immunities of death! As if it were not to die, and yet be patient spectators of our own pitiable change! The permanent possibility is preserved, but the sensations carefully held at arm's length, as if one kept a photographic plate in a dark chamber. It is better to lose health like a spendthrift than to waste it like a miser. It is better to live and be done with it than to die daily in the sickroom."—London Chronicle.

California's Petroleum.

Petroleum was produced in a small way in California very early in the history of the country—in fact, long before it was invaded by the army of gold seekers. Mr. C. Morrell, a druggist in San Francisco, is commonly credited with being the first to attempt the distillation of kerosene from crude petroleum. This was in 1857, but several years prior to that Andreas Pico made illuminating oil from petroleum which he obtained in the Newhall region in Los Angeles county. This oil was burned, so it is said, in lamps in the mission San Fernando.—Argonaut.

Not Stationary.

A carpenter who had been engaged to build a cabinet for paper, envelopes and other office supplies in a local commission house was busy at his task when one of the bookkeepers inquired: "Is that going to be a stationary cabinet?" "No. I don't think so," replied the worker. "At least I have instructions to put casters on it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Portrait.

The painstaking artist, anxious to please, remarked to prospective customer: "I can paint you a portrait of your wife which will be a speaking likeness." "H'm. Couldn't you do it in what they call still life?"—Lippincott's.

A Fellow Feeling.

Rector—I hope you didn't find my lecture dry last night? Old Gargle—Well, zur, I wouldn't go so far as to say that, zur, but when you stops in the middle to have a swig though it was only water, I sees to me self, "Ehr, ear!"—London Tatler.
