To all of these people I extend a most hearty welcome to come and visit me in my own store, and to the trade with whom I have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance I wish to say that a trial is all I ask. I have always believed in the one principle of making good and that will be the motto in my establishment."

HABITS ARE TYRANTS.

Changing Them Too Suddenly Is Apt to Produce Bad Results.

Those who form sudden resolutions to break off their habits, no matter whether they are good or bad, may be laying themselves open to an illness.

A man who for the last twelve years has made a rule of spending one week of his holiday each year in bed departed from the custom last year and for the first time throughout that period had an illness which kept him from business. The human body can shape itself to practically any conditions or habits, but if those conditions are discontinued suddenly one is almost sure to be ill.

In fact, it is the opinion of a well known physician that any kind of habit is bound to "hit back" if it be discontinued too abruptly. No man can suddenly switch off meat to a vegetable diet, for instance, and remain well.

Here is a common instance of how the body adapts itself to environment. A man is kept to his bed for two or three weeks. When he gets up he finds it difficult to walk for the first day or two. He puts down this trouble to weakness. But his legs are not really weaker. It is simply that their mechanism is upset.

De Quincey is a notable example of the way habits become chains, which, if broken, bring illness and often death. The famous writer had accustomed himself to taking four ounces of laudanum a day. He would certainly have died if he stopped this daily dose.—London Mirror.

Putting It Up to Him.

"Patience is a virtue," said the man, philosophically.

"True," replied his wife, who thought he ought to be earning more money. "And I'll provide the patience for this family if you'll only provide the bustle."—Detroit Free Press

Borrowing Trouble.

"Ever since his wife has brought suit for divorce he has looked terribly worried."

"He oughtn't to worry; she'll probably get it."—Houston Post

A judicious silence is always better than truth spoken without charity.—De Sales.

Helping Him Out.

Caller—You know, there was something I wanted to ask you, but it has quite gone out of my mind. I can't remember what it was.

Maiden (hopefully)—It wasn't good night, was it?—Woman's Home Companion.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach, and it is not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle. "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." Sold by all dealers.

NEWS FOR THE RURAL SECTIONS

Observer's Big Asset

AFTER diligent search and at the sacrifice of considerable expense money The Observer has establish paid correspondents in a majority of all the big towns, and a vast number of postoffice and rural districts throughout Union and Wallowa counties. Within the course of a month this chain of paid correspondents will be complete and long and The Observer can then boast of the biggest news-gathering force of any out-of-Portland paper in the state. Scarcely a hamlet in the two counties but what will have its day-to-day news recorded weekly in The Observer. With a network of telephone wires, and rural route mail service, the combination works "going and coming" — The Observer gets the news from the rural districts by both letter and telephone, and The Observer, in turn, promptly reaches the readers with not only the country correspondence in full, but its varied other news "to boot"

Daily TheObserver brings to the reader the latest news and gossip from the market world—wheat, hogs, vegetables, cattle, in fact, every commodity of trade is reviewed for the instruction and benefit of the reader who may have no other way of learning these important facts.

No matter how remote the reader is from well-beaten thoroughfares of commerce or from the larger cities, The Observer, through its expensive telegraph news system keeps that reader in close touch with the world's affairs. No corner so distant but what The Observer telegraph news system reaches there and quickly, surely and concisely puts it before the Observer readers today.
