MAN FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH SIX MILES SOUTH OF THE CITY

Exposure to mountain air is probably responsible for the death of a man whose remains were found on the W. S. Montgomery homestead near the Pole Patch six miles south of the city yesterday. The body was discovered lying in some hay in a barn by Harvey Clark and a companion. Coroner Bacon was notified and went to the scene yesterday, pronouncing death due to freezing. A crew of men has gone to the homestead today to bring the remains to the city but it is doubtful if they will be able to get through the hard roads and return before tonight. The man's name has not been announced and he is probably a woodchopper who became exhausted footing the deep snow, and worn out, lay down to rest on the hay and then froze to death.

King of Money Men Dies in Rome

During all his year Mr. Morgan enjoyed life to the utmost. He was passionately fond of dogs, and his kennels at Cragston were the wonder of breeders the world over. He rode and shot and angled enthusiastically, and was fond of yachting. His yacht Corsair was one of his favorite recreations. He belonged to numerous societies and clubs in the United States and Europe.

It is impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the size of the Morgan fortune. It has been variously estimated in recent years at from $75,000,000 to $200,000,000. If it is anywhere near the latter figure, it is equally true that Mr. Morgan made as much for others.

In 1861 Mr. Morgan married Miss Amelia Sturges, who died the following year. In 1865 he married Frances Louise Tracey, by whom he had one son and three daughters. The son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., is now a man of middle life, and for a number of years has been the active head of the Morgan banking house in New York.

Art Instincts of the Japanese.

Possibly the Greeks may have been endowed with a universal instinct for art production and art appreciation, but certain it is that there is no other nation today living in which artistic taste and aptitude are more generally diffused than in Japan. Not only are the commonest kitchen utensils molded into forms of exquisite beauty by Japanese artisans, but it is also very unusual to find even a coolie who is not in some way a capable artist. To this so competent an authority as Professor Chamberlain bears testimony in saying that it is the common people that the foreigner in Japan must go for those lessons in proportion, fitness and sobriety which Greece once knew so well. Do you want flowers arranged? Ask your house coolie to arrange them. Is something wrong in the laying out of your garden? Call in the cook or the washerwoman as counselor. It makes little difference whom you consult, so universal is the development of the art instinct among the common people throughout the entire empire.—Arthur May Knapp in Atlantic.

Our First Shoemakers.

The great American industry of shoe manufacturing, which now amounts to $500,000,000 annually, appears to have had its beginning in Salem, Mass., when Thomas Board and Isaac Hickerman, the first shoemakers of record in this land, settled there after the Mayflower had brought them over on her second voyage. They were adjudged so valuable an addition to the little colony that the selectmen voted to furnish them board and house room free. The shoemakers who first came to this country were most welcome men, for in the earliest settlements of New England boots and shoes were altogether an imported stock, and the rough land of the new country wore out even the strongest boots in short order. The growth of the shoe industry in the United States has kept pace with other lines of manufacture, and America manufactures the best shoes of any nation in the world.—New Orleans Picayune.

No Crowding in English Cars.

Americans submit to being compelled to ride in cars so crowded that they get their feet trod on, their clothes torn and get no seats, but pay just as if there was no crowding and abundant comfort.

The Englishman is subjected to no such injustice. And why? Because when tuncars first came into vogue an Englishman found the passageway in a car filled with passengers. He did not submit. He went to court and got damages, the court saying in accents which are echoing in England yet:

"The carrier is obliged by law to furnish not only transportation, but comfortable transportation. This is no more performed by furnishing transportation without a seat than it would be by furnishing a seat without transportation. And this is not all—the passenger is entitled to free ingress and egress."—Houston Chronicle.

THE PALACE OF FLAMES

ITALY'S FOREMOST ACTOR IN THE ROLE OF PHOTO PLAY

Arcade Shows Spectacular Feature Today and Tomorrow.

The management of the Arcade theatre offers for today and tomorrow "The Palace of Flames," a three reel spectacular production filmed by the Italia company with Zaccanti, Italy's foremost actor in the title role. This picture was given a private exhibition this morning and Manager Burkhardt says it contains the most thrilling and realistic fire scenes ever thrown on the Arcade screen. The People's theatre in Portland played to the largest crowds in its history during the presentation of this film. The program closes with the ever popular Gaumont Weekly and Keeffer & Albarta in their laughable playlet entitled, "The German Boy and the Western Girl."
