THE FOOTHILL ROAD IS BAD

MAIL CARRIER HAS STRENUOUS TRIP EACH DAY.

Reins Continue to Swell Ladd Creek to Flood Stage.

Ladd Canyon, April 1.—(Special)—It has been showering here off and on since Friday and the water has raised considerably in Ladd creek. Quite a good many are on the sick list as a result of the changeable weather.

There is hardly any traffic going on at the present time, owing to the bad condition of the roads there being hardly any bottoms to them. When the weather is good the daily mail carrier gets here at 11 o'clock, but now he does not get here until about 12:30.

Recommended for a Good Reason.

C. H. Grant, 230 Waverly st., Peoria Ill., says: "Backache and congested kidneys made me suffer intense pains. Was always tired and floating specks bothered me. Took Foley's Kidney Pills and saw big improvement after third day. I kept on until entirely freed of all trouble and suffering. That's why I recommend Foley's Kidney Pills. They cured me." For sale by A. T. Hill.

Waiting For the Lightning.

Curious information on the habits of the big trees of California is given in one of John Muir's books. "These big trees," he says, "seem to be immortal unless they are destroyed by accident. There is no record of their existence of centuries. Their life is due to accident, not to any special habit, to the wearing out of the old trees, or to the decay of old trees. But the leaves are renewed every year, and so also are the essential organs—wood, bark, buds. Most of the old trees die of disease, but the big trees, with the distinct exception of the sequoia, never saw one that was not or showed the slightest sign of decay. Barring accidents, it seems to be immortal. It is a curious fact that all the very old sequoias had lost their heads by lightning strokes. "All things come to him who waits." But of all living things the sequoia is perhaps the only one able to wait long enough to make sure of being struck by lightning."

A Scot as Grand Vizier.

In "Further Reminiscences," Mrs. Hugh Fraser tells of James Keith, a Scotsman, who served with Spain, Russia and Prussia. As general officer of the Empress Anna Petrovna, he was intrusted with the conduct of some preliminaries of peace with Turkey prior to the treaty of Belgrade. On the completion of the negotiations, which were conducted in French, the Turkish representative, no other than the grand vizier himself, a tall, red bearded personage dressed all in the sacred green of a haddi (or holy man) who had made the pilgrimage to Mecca, arose and came round to where Keith was standing by the table. "It affords me great pleasure, sir," the grand vizier began to the astounded Keith in excellent English, with an entrancing Scottish accent, "to have the opportunity of meeting again with so distinguished a person as yourself. You look surprised, but I well remember you and your brother going to school. My father, sir, was the bell-man of Kirkcaldy."

The Serbs' Rout.

It was on the banks of the Maritza, near Adrianople, in 1394, that the Turks first came into conflict with the young Slavonic races, the Servians, the Bosnians, the Bulgarians, Louis L. king of Hungary and Poland with the princes of Bosnia, Serbia and Wallachia, had decided to conquer the sultan, a task that the Greeks had been unable to manage. The Turks were only half as strong as the allies, but the commander took advantage of the intoxication of the allies to make a sudden night attack. The Slavs were aroused by the beating of the Turkish drums. "The Ottomans were upon them before they could stand to arms. They were like wild beasts scared from their lair," says Sa'd-ud-Din. "Speeding from the field of light to the waste of night, those abjects poured into the stream Maritza and were drowned." The spot can still be seen on the map as Sir Sindugli, the "Serbs' rout."

Marat and His Ugliness.

Jean Paul Marat of the French revolution is said to have been not only one of the ugliest men in all France, but to have been positively repulsive in person, habits and manners. Yet in his early career he was beyond question the most popular physician in Paris, particularly with the women. It is said that his consulting rooms were daily crowded by the loveliest women in Paris. Even when he was suffering from a loathsome skin disease, contracted while hiding in the sewers of Paris, he was tenderly nursed by one of the loveliest of his admirers, whom he eventually married.

When Edward Was Peeved.
"King Edward in His True Colors" is this story of the late king: At Marlborough House, one night in the eighth of King, who was then the Prince of Wales, was playing billiards with some of his courtiers. His royal highness was not in particularly good form, and after a rather bad shot one of the younger men shouted, to the amusement and disgust of the others, "I say, Wales; pull yourself together." The prince made no reply, but he called a servant, said, "Call Mr. ..."

How She Struck Him.
