

ANNIVERSARY SALE

On April 20th, 1907, we opened our store to the public. Since that time many things have happened---many changes have occurred in the business world of La Grande but the policy of this store is the same today as it was then. Honesty and fairness in every sale was the idea we had when we opened our store and that idea is just as strong with us now as it was then. Many people of La Grande and vicinity who began trading with us at that time are still trading with us and we feel that this is an indication of our policy. To all those patrons and the many new ones we have gained since we extend our most hearty thanks, and to still further show our appreciation of their patronage we will offer

FRESHER TIPS REACHING CITY

WALLA WALLA GROWN ASPARAGUS
Selling Here

California Strawberries to Take Florida Grades' Places.

Crisp asparagus tips, grown in Walla Walla, are now on the La Grande markets, in limited quantities however. A shipment arrived yesterday and more is to come for the Saturday trade. The quality of the plant has been much better than the tips arriving from more remote districts.

California grown strawberries are arriving to take the place of Florida stuff. One batch due to arrive today, has been delayed and is now looked for tomorrow. However, the strawberry trade is uncertain—the merchants can't deliver them to the consumer unless the berries come first.

Few changes have occurred in the market circles of the city. Eggs and butter remain a established earlier in the week.
