How the Pulse Varies.

The human pulse has rather a wide range, but the general average may be put about as follows: At birth, 140; at two years, 100; at from sixteen to nineteen years, 80; at manhood, 75; old age, 60. There are, however, great variations consistent with health. Napoleon's pulse is said to have been only forty-four in the minute. A case is also related of a healthy man of eighty-seven whose pulse was seldom over thirty during the last two years of his life and sometimes not more than twenty-eight. Another man of eighty-seven years of age enjoyed good health and spirits with a pulse of twenty-nine, and there is also on record the curious instance of a man whose pulse in health was never more than forty-five, and to be consistent in his inconsistency, when he had fever his pulse fell to forty instead of rising, as is usual.

"Talesman" in English Law.

A talesman, according to English law, is a juror summoned to fill a gap, and formerly, at any rate, this was often done by taking any suitable person who was present in court. "Tales de circumstantibus" ("such of the bystanders") were the first words of the order directing this process. Good Pickwickians may remember that, as only ten special jurors were present on a memorable occasion, Mr. Serjeant Buzfuz "prayed a tales," whereupon two of the common jurors, one of whom was the unfortunate chemist, were pressed into the service.—London Standard.

A Pertinent Query.

The old gentleman looked Perley in the eye.
"Can you support my daughter in the style to which she is accustomed?" he demanded.
"No, colonel, I can't," replied Perley, "but let me ask you, sir, could you have done so at my age?"—Harper's Weekly.

The Lure.

"You're wanted at home, father."
"Who says so?"
"Mother."
"Did she say anything else?"
"She said if you didn't come at once she'd come and fetch you."
"Come on, boy, let's go home."—Flegende Blatter.

More Reliable.

"Now, I want a canary that will sing right away and that will sing what I like, one that won't get the pip or die the first week."
"You don't want a canary, my friend. What you want is a music box."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Don't heat the whole house to heat your irons. It isn't necessary.

Hot weather ironing with old fashioned irons is about as hard and exhausting a task as falls to the lot of the average woman. The sensible way is to use an electric iron. It can be connected to any light socket, so you can iron in the coolest room in the house, or on the porch if you like.

Electric irons make ironing a pleasure. No waiting for irons to heat; no changing irons; no drudgery. Your ironing is done in comfort and in 1-3 to 1-2 less time. And another important feature, Electric ironing is actually cheaper. All our irons are guaranteed.
