

NEW STORE WILL OPEN

"THE HUB" ENTERS BUSINESS IN OLD POSTOFFICE ROOM.

Finishing Touches on Room Will Be Made When Business Is Running.

Tomorrow the "Hub" will open for business in the former post office room with a large line of dry goods and shoes, which from time to time will be added to until the "Hub" store in La Grande occupies the same rank as do the stores of this company by the same name in other cities of the Northwest.

Because the room is not entirely finished will not longer defer opening the new store. The manager stated to a reporter for the Observer last evening, that the store would open regardless of plate glass fronts. "We can sell goods and accommodate our trade during these summer months without any front in the building," he continued, "for it is the goods at the right prices the people want." Workmen are working on the building, and when it is completed it will be one of the modern structures of the city.

WINNERS RETURN HOME.

Rayburn Kills 244 Out of 250 Birds at Boise Shoot This Week.

Three of the best shooters at the big Boise Blue Rock festivities returned this morning with a fine pocketful of moneys won and several trophies earned when Lou Rayburn, high average and high man for the shoot, Press Lewis and Claude Mackay returned from Boise. Rayburn went the remarkable gait of 244 dead birds out of 250 for the shoot missing the Dupont 100-straight trophy by one bird two times. He got away with the professionals and amateurs alike, and brought home several first moneys of considerable bulk. He won two trophies and tied one but was not eligible because he was a non-resident. Mackay shot with a clear eye and with Lewis, broke around 91 and 92 per cent each day, not getting below 90 at any time. The three men won a three-man team shoot as well, with a good score. Rayburn's remarkable shooting places him well in the front of Pacific coast cracks for his percentage was unusually high Rayburn's long run was 91.

COL. IVANHOE TO SPEAK.

Wallowa County Pioneers Will Hear Him Saturday.

Next Saturday Wallowa county pioneers will meet in annual session at the Lake at Joseph. An invitation has been extended to Col. Ivanhoe of this city to address the gathering. The committee in charge indicated to the Colonel that he was one of them; that he had resided so long in Wallowa county he was acquainted with nearly every ground squirrel; that he had drank from the same canteen with the older citizens, slept with many of them under the same blankets, attended the same camp meetings and worshipped the same God—and for these reasons and others, the committee insisted upon the La Grande man journeying to Joseph Saturday and delivering a speech.

When asked if he was going to be present today, Col. Ivanhoe remarked: "Going to be present? There is nothing but death that can prevent me from attending that meeting. It is like going home to go over to Wallowa county. I most certainly shall attend and it is an honor that I greatly appreciate to be invited to talk on the occasion when the old heroic pioneers of that county assemble Saturday."

Three and possibly four of the men will be easterners. The expenses of the trip will be paid by the Australian and New Zealand Amateur Athletic association.

CATCHER SCHANG LOOKS GOOD

Athletics' Young Catcher Gives Promise of Developing Into a Star.

That the abilities of Wally Schang, the young catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics for whom thirteen clubs put in a draft last fall, have not been over-estimated has been proved to Connie Mack. The youngster shows more and more every day. He can hit, is fast on the bases and has an excellent throwing arm. Mack also is well pleased with the work of Pete Daly, the young outfielder he secured from Los Angeles for Maggett, Fabey and Crabbe. The youngster has the ability to get on the bases, and Mack hopes to use him as a lead-off man for the Athletics.

Halpin Will Race Abroad.

Tom Halpin of Boston, the national quarter mile sprinting champion and captain of the New England track team, may make the long journey to Australia to show his wares to the folk on the other side of the world some time this summer.

MUTUAL IGNORANCE.

Quaint Story of Dumas and Scribe, the Playwright.

Sardou had his eyes opened by the plays of Scribe. At that day it was the fashion among the younger literary men to sneer at Scribe—as it is today, by the way, to sneer at Sardou. Scribe was called a "potboiler," a maker of mechanical plays, a man who wrote scenes to fit scenery and a maker of plots rather than of plays. Appalling tales were told of him by unsuccessful playwrights. It was whispered that he sucked the brains of other men, purchased ideas, revamped them and thus acquired the large fortune which he was then enjoying.

How they accounted for the fact that with the ideas of unsuccessful playwrights he made successful plays tradition does not tell. But all were agreed that Scribe was mediocre, that his success was accidental and that he was a miser. Albert Wolff gives these details of the opinions held with regard to Scribe in the fifties and adds this anecdote:

"The only influential man I knew in Paris," said Sardou, "was Dumas the elder. One day I said to him, 'Won't you give me a letter of introduction to Scribe, the playwright?' 'Scribe,' said the great romancer—'who is Scribe? I never heard of him.' I sighed and determined to see Scribe without a letter. So I called at his house that very day and was at once received. 'Pardon my intrusion,' I said, 'but I had expected to bring a letter of introduction to you from M. Alexandre Dumas, the celebrated romancer.' 'Dumas? Interrupted Scribe. 'Never heard of him. Who is Dumas?'—From Jerome A. Hart's 'Sardou and the Sardou Plays.'

Not a Minute Wasted.

"Can't I get my pants pressed while you cut my hair?"
"Certainly, sir!"
"All right. Boy, shine my shoes at the same time, and hand me that newspaper. By the way, get the restaurant next door to send in a couple of sandwiches, and I can be eating my lunch."—Pittsburgh Post.

THE BRAVE HEART.

Whatever life shall bring to me,
That will I take most thank-fully.

Some bitter cups my lips must drain,
Some days be dark with mist and rain.

Life is not play, but battle long,
And favors neither weak nor strong.

And only he of faithless heart
Would stand from strife and stress apart.

Only he in coward guise
Would have life ordered other-wise.

—Arthur Wallace Peach.

SAYINGS OF TODAY.

The American college of today is between the upper and nether millstones. The German-American university has now become the home of scholarship and research. If the American college is to repeat in the twentieth century the inestimable service it rendered to American civilization in the nineteenth century it must recognize the dawn of the new era. Let the typical graduate be trained not only in scholarship and culture, but how to loaf wisely.—Henry Louis Smith, President Washington and Lee University.

I feel as if I am making a twentieth century fight into another world. Comparisons are impossible. It will take me some time to get my breath. What a lot Europe might learn from wondrous America! But then one must consider. It is much easier to build up a new country than to change an old one.—C. de Bruyne, Alderman of Ghent, Belgium, Visiting New York.

KAYLOR'S BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

Willow Glenn Nursery Favors The Observer with Bouquet.

Today the Willow Glenn Nursery owned by Mr. Kaylor, presented this office with as beautiful a bouquet of peonies as can be grown any place in all the world. Mr. Kaylor, when he selected La Grande as a place to grow good nursery stock, did so after traveling over a greater portion of the world. He is a native of the State of Maine, has sailed for years on the high seas visiting every country, and this is what he says of the rGande Ronde valley: "There is no place where the trees, shrubs and flowers get a healthier growth, respond to culture more freely and produce better fruit or prettier flowers. Portland speaks of her rose show, why all we need is more rose bushes to raise as many and as pretty roses as does Portland."

FIRE AT CHICO FATAL

Barber Hotel Burned and Many Guests
Have Narrow Escape.

Chico, Cal., June 19.—Two men were burned to death and 10 others died from injuries and still others are seriously hurt, some fatally, as the result of a fire which consumed the Barber hotel last night. Citizens heroically attempted to save the lives of all but the flames raged high before help came. The guests leaped to the streets. Frank Loomis nearly lost his life trying to save his father.
