LEW MINOR GOT PRIZES

WALLOWA CHAMPION BUCKAROO TELLS OF ROUNDUP.

Personal Mention and News Items From Wallowa Town and District.

Wallowa, Ore., July 21--(Special)--All the followers of the fortunes of "Lew" Minor are exceedingly gratified over the fast work he accomplished at the Salt Lake round-up. When "Lew" went away every man here was willing to bet his bank roll that "The Pride of Wallowa" would return with his share of the Salt Lake "mazuma", and their confidence was justified, for he returned Thursday with nearly $700 in prize money. The battle on the opening day in the wild horse race was according to Lew's description, a pretty lively affair, there were enough bad actors in the race,

"enough," said Lew, "to start a grave yard right there." But the young man from Wallowa had "ridden many pesky horses before," and after jumping a few fences he finally reached the stretch, and in a rousing finish beat the field.

"Bulldogging the steers," says Lew, "was no ping pong affair, a contest where mollycoddles are not wont to shine in." After some strenuous work it was finally thought by the judges that Lew looked like a fellow that wasn't worrying too much about his own skin and so handed him the unanimous verdict of first money.

In the bucking contest, many things seemed to slip the judges' notice. Our boy selected "a hoss that wouldn't stand without hitchin' ". Maybe it was because Lew was already a world's champion that it was part of the joke on the judges' decision that he received second money, however we are all exceedingly glad of his success, and his modesty in speaking of his treatment shows him to be a good sportsman.
