From Pendleton East Oregonians Invite Visitors to Roundup

Two hundred and sixty-five personal invitations were mailed today by the Roundup directors to editors of as many different papers over the west and northwest to attend the Roundup this year, September 13, 14 and 15. These invitations were all typewritten letters to the editors personally and it is expected fully one-half of them will accept and be at the Roundup during the three days' exhibition.

"Amey" Riley Laid to Rest

One of the most largely attended funerals in Pendleton in recent years was that which marked the last rites over the mortal remains of Mrs. Anna M. Riley, the "Mother of Pendleton," who died Monday night.

was held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Episcopal church and the funeral services which gathered in the auditorium for the occasion testified to the esteem in which the pioneer lady was held in the community of which she was the first resident. Rev. Charles Quinney presided at the funeral and paid the deceased a fitting tribute. Interment was made in the Olney cemetery.

Water Began When Most Needed

What a water system relying upon pumps for the source of supply has drawbacks was shown here again last night when with the city still suffering from the heat and many thirsty people wanting water, the city water supply gave out at 6:30 and was not available again until toward 9 o'clock. The trouble came from the fact that some sudden repairs in the steam pump became necessary at the water works and the steam pump had to quit operations, thus leaving the full burden of pumping water upon the electric pump. The latter pump was unable to meet the situation and within a short time there was neither water in the reservoir nor much in the mains. Had there been a fire during the early evening the city would have been in a precarious condition. The reservoir was practically empty until well towards morning. During the forenoon a further gain was made and at noon it was thought there would be no further shortage. According to Will Moore, chairman of the water board, some further repairs to the pump will have to be made but they will be undertaken later tonight so as not to interfere with the service.

Ornamental Corn on Display

Judge Stephen A. Lowell today has on display in the Pendleton Drug company's window several stalks of Luther Burbank's "rainbow" corn which is grown for ornamental purposes. The blades of the corn is striped and very much resembles ribbon grass. When it gets plenty of sun its stripes are of various colors, hence its name. Burbank developed it from ordinary field corn by making careful selections of the spots which showed the striped peculiarity. By using the seed from these, he eventually evolved a corn all of the blades of which showed the abnormal feature.

Judge Lowell went for some of the seed last year and planned them in his yard.

Roundup Hangers Ready

The large, attractive hangers for the Roundup this year are just coming from the press. They show a large half-size set of E. W. Miller making the championship rodeo on the outlaw "Argus" last year. These hangers will be placed in mailing tubes and mailed to let thousands of people all over the northwest and the United States. In addition to the hanger will be a six-page folder with Roundup pictures, the E. W. R. & A. poster and folder and Northern Pacific literature. In all fifty thousand people will be associated directly with Roundup literature from this office.

Accuses Daughter of Cheating

Louis La Brosseau, old time resident of Astoria, today commenced suit against his daughter, Mary La Brosseau-Bastieley, alleging that she and her husband, J. C. Bastieley of Walls Walla, have cheated him out of his property. On March 6, he alleges that they caused him to deed the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 22, township 4 N., range 16, to the defendant with the understanding that it would be deeded back at any time plaintiff desired. The land is valued at $4500, he alleges and is planted to a crop worth $3000. Soon after the deed was executed, it is alleged, defendant borrowed $3000 on a mortgage and wanted to invest it in a race horse but plaintiff refused to consent. Thereupon, defendant loaned $100 to her husband who is not worth that amount, it is claimed. The plaintiff also contends that his daughter has been trying to send him to an asylum, has refused to allow him the necessities of life and has had a notice printed in the Astoria Press disclaiming responsibility for his bills. He asks for an order to deed the land back to him. H. I. Watts is his attorney.

Expert Demonstrator Here to Explain Workings of a Good Machine

To the Housewives of La Grande: The La Grande Evening Observer has an emancipation proclamation of its own to make, one that will free all women who have been slaves to the broom and all men who have been slaves to the carpet beater. Briefly put, it is offering a bargain in a vacuum cleaner, and by an arrangement made with the manufacturing company will place this modern household necessity in the reach of all far less than half of the regular market price. Here is the offer. All subscribers to the La Grande Evening Observer may secure a Junior guaranteed cleaner for $4.85, the factory price, and those who are not taking the paper may take advantage of the offer by subscribing to the daily for four months if delivered by carrier or for six months if delivered by mail. This is the proposition in as few words as possible. Anyone interested in the plan may have the vacuum cleaner demonstrated at their home by telephoning to the La Grande Evening Observer, Main 11. Geo. Zein, a representative of the Hugo Manufacturing company, of Chicago, is here and it is his business to explain the operation of the cleaner. It is a simple piece of machinery and can be operated as successfully by a child as by an expert mechanic. It sells in retail markets at $14.00, and the arrangement by which the La Grande Evening Observer people are able to save $4.15 is made by the company as an advertising medium. The offer will hold good for a limited time only.

To Pass Child Labor Law

Washington, July 25.—National child labor legislation to protect all American labor from competition with the labor of children in factories both at home and abroad, will be passed at the next session of congress according to Senator Lane, of Oregon. "The reason the democratic caucus refused to put into the tariff bill the clause prohibiting the importation of goods manufactured by children into states where child labor is forbidden," said Senator Lane today, "was that we did not want to weight the bill down with any more subjects that might endanger it. It was pointed out in the caucus that the cheap jute bags used for grain throughout the west are made by children in India and that there is no economical substitute for them. A good many other similar problems were involved. At

Lightning Struck Here

From Boise comes the story of a freak of lightning which struck the claim of Miss Anna Skarnie at Blaine, Oregon. About two o'clock in the afternoon the young lady left the field for her cabin, when a threatened thunder storm broke. The lightning struck her little home in two places and knocked her face forward upon the floor. She had barely time to escape with a few clothes, which were so badly burned that it will be impossible to use them. The house burned to the ground and the heavy wind which was blowing at the time, directed the fire to some lumber, which also burned. However, this large misfortune is not discouraged and announces her determination to begin all over again and make a go of it in a brief time.
