Mr. Lavery's "Scottishness."

John Lavery, the eminent artist, is often taken for a Scotsman owing to the fact that he was brought up in Glasgow and first made his mark there. He is, however, an Irishman, born at Belfast. Soon after coming to Loudon the young painter held an exhibition of his works. This was attended by a well known art collector, a Scotsman, who bought several pictures. In sending Mr. Lavery a check this gentleman said he was glad to be the means of helping a brother Scot.

Mr. Lavery wrote, thanking him, but pointing out that he was no Scot, but an Irishman.

"However," he added, "I am sufficiently Scottish to have delayed telling you this until I had cashed your check."

He was afraid his patron might have "stopped" the check on learning his true nationality.—London Answers.

Jeremiah Mason on War.

On one occasion Mr. Mason came into Mr. Sumner's office and found him engaged in writing an address to be delivered before a peace society. After a little good natured banter on the part of Mr. Mason and an equally good natured defense of his views by Mr. Sumner, the former, rising to take his leave, said: "Well, Sumner, you may be right, but I should just as soon think of joining a society for the suppression of thunder and lightning as a society for the suppression of war."—From Memoirs of Jeremiah Mason, by G. S. Hillard.

ATHENS AND THE SEASON.

Not Comfort, but the Date, Governs the Summer Outings.

The modern Athenians are not very fond of hard exercise, and except in the height of summer, when many of them go to Kephisia and Phalerum and others to the islands or to the baths near Corinth for a "cure," they seem well content to remain within their city. They are governed, it seems by fashion, like those who dwell in less favored lands.

When I was in Athens the weather was usually magnificent and often very hot. Yet Phalerum, perhaps half an hour by train from Constitution square, was deserted. In the vast hotel there I found only two or three children; in the baths half a dozen swimmers. The pleasure boats lay idle by the pier. I asked the reason of this—why at evening dusty Athens was crammed with strollers and the pavements were black with people taking coffee and ices, while delightful Phalerum, with its cooler air and its limpid waters, held no one but an English traveler?

"The season is over," was the only reply I received, delivered with a grave air of finality. I tried to argue the matter and suggested that anxiety about the war had something to do with it. But I was informed that the "season" closed on a certain day and that after that day the Athenians gave up going to Phalerum.—Robert Heber in Century Magazine.

To Clean Valuable Glass.

One can never be careful enough in cleaning valuable objects d'art of all kinds, says the Pall Mall Gazette. Many exquisite pieces have been entirely spoiled through cleaning being accomplished unintelligently. Old glass counts among the most precious of possessions, and for its cleaning chemicals must never be used, because they remove that dull bluish gloss which is always a characteristic of antique specimens and is a point highly prized by connoisseurs. If cleaning really becomes necessary use powdered eggshells. These must be ground very fine, with no gritty pieces remaining to scratch the glass. Mix with tepid water into a thin paste and with this rub the glass, rinse with clear water afterward and dry with a soft leather. This is the only really reliable way of cleaning valuable glass and is a method carefully followed by collectors.

Memory Erased by Sandbag.

Writing on "Confessions of Self Robbery and the Retroactive Amnesia" in Case and Comment, Professor E. B. Delabarre of Brown university tells the interesting fact that a concussion or blow from a sandbag will erase and drive from the brain or the memory occurrences happening within from three to five hours previous to the concussion, but will not disturb the impressions on the mind of previous occurrences. The author describes the effectiveness of this knowledge in securing complete confessions from "self accused" individuals as follows: "I talked the matter over with J. B. Hume, at that time chief detective for Wells, Fargo & Co., and he forced a number of self robbed agents who were short and reported sandbagging robbery, to confess because a sandbag would not show any marks, but as they in each case told all particulars up to the blow of the sandbag he made them own up."

A Blunder Transformed.

In the "Memoirs of the Prince Imperial," the ill fated heir of Napoleon III., it is related that as the prince grew up he developed royal tact to a marked degree. On one occasion he met the well known author, Albert Second, and, mistaking him for Marshal Leboeuf, remarked, "I am delighted to shake the hand of a friend of my father." When informed of his mistake and seeing that Second was a little put out over it, he begged M. Filon to find him again and give him this message: "The prince knows he made a mistake, but has nothing to change in his phrase." "I managed to carry out my commission," adds M. Filon, "before many witnesses who, like myself, saw the delight of the amiable writer."

The Mystery.

Visitor—I understand that you had an amateur dramatic performance in the town hall last night?

Native—Yes. The Sock and Buskin club played "Little Mac, or the Mountain Mystery."

Visitor—And what was the mystery?

Native—As near as I could make out the mystery was how the audience stood it till the last act was over.—London Tit-Bits.

Too Kind to Lose.

Your husband is willing to allow you the custody of the automobile, the poodle and the rubber plant, with liberal alimony, while he takes the children and the graphophone."

"Stop the divorce!" sobbed the wife. "I'll never get another husband like that."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Where Do the Watches Go?

What becomes of the watches? The average man does not buy more than about two or three watches in the course of his whole life, and yet the manufacturers keep on making new watches by the hundred thousands. Who buys them all? No statistics can answer the question. What becomes of the old watches? What did you do with the one you discarded when you got your present watch? Where is it now? It was a silver watch and it kept good time for years—that old watch, that predecessor of the gold one that you now possess. You had a strong affection for it. You called it "she," and sometimes in the solitude of your room you may have caught yourself saying a word or two to it aloud. The watch certainly talked to you in the middle of the night. Helene's watch conjugated Hebrew by the hour. The old watch had a kind of a ringing tick like a riveting machine, and you could hear it clear through the pillow. It has sung you to sleep more than once. But let's see—what in heaven's name became of it?—New York Mail.

Helping a Brother.

Suddenly the man with the chin beard, who was eating his luncheon in a restaurant, reached across the table, touched the button in the lapel of the coat worn by the man directly opposite him and gave him the grip of the secret order to which they both be longed.

"Brother," he said, "I see you're in need, and to live up to my sworn duty I am compelled to—"

"In need?" interrupted the other in wide eyed astonishment. "In need of what?"

"Of somebody to tell you that a knife is not the proper implement to use when you are eating corned beef hash."

By prompt action half a dozen waiters quelled the disturbance that began immediately, but they were too late to prevent the destruction of about $10 worth of tableware.—Cleveland News.

The Case Altered.

An attaché of the American embassy at Paris tells the following as illustrative of the sort of sentiment which the French system of marriage de convenance produces:

Clarimonde, a young lady, announces to her parents that she has accepted the hand of M. Blanc.

"Child, you are mad!" exclaims Clarimonde's mother.

"But why, mamma?"

"Young Blanc will have no money for many years, because it all belongs to his grandfather, and after that comes his father, and you will be old before you get at the property."

"But, mamma—"

"No buts about it. You are a bad and unfeeling child!"

"But, mamma, it is the grandfather whom I have accepted!"

"The grandfather? Oh, you little angel!"—L'Espresso's.
