PACIFIC PEACH TO CONTINENT

EUROPE WILL GET REAL FRUIT THIS YEAR.

Shipment From Yakima to Be Among First Sent Out In 1913.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 13—Europe is going to get a taste of real peaches from the Pacific northwest. A carload shipment from Yakima is being prepared for shipment under the direction of the Northwestern Fruit exchange of this city.

The shipment will consist of a carload of Elbertas and only the best quality fruit will be included. Special packing will be necessary in order to insure arrival of the supplies in the best possible condition. While the regulation boxes will be utilized, the layers will have a wood-fiber cushion to insure them against rough handling and possible damage in transit across the Atlantic.

This will be the first time that any real serious attempt has been made by fruit shipping interest to send a big supply of Pacific northwest peaches to Europe. While other shipments have gone forward, they have been more in the nature of a trial than anything else. This will be the first time that shipment will be on a real commercial basis. The peach shipment is not being made to England because of the fizzle of a former shipment by other interests. England is not a suitable market for Pacific northwest peaches because the fruit is not generally known there. It is stated on every good authority that not more than one out of ten people in England have ever seen a peach, outside of a newspaper illustration.

The English market's peach wants are supplied exclusively by a hot house peach, the quality of which cannot be duplicated by outdoor grown stuff. Naturally such peaches sell at an extremely high price, but as the only consumers are the nobility, they can afford to pay the price.

There is every indication that considerable business in peaches will be developed by Pacific northwest interests. After the Panama canal is opened a heavy volume of business is likely because the fruit can then be shipped direct, thereby saving much time, money as well as loss in spoilage in transit over the present long distance shipment.

Local selling interests are working on the theory that a very good business in deciduous fruits can be established with the tropical countries that know very little of the temperate zone's products at this time. This will give a new trade channel for most of the so-called soft fruits of the Pacific northwest and may eventually help to stimulate prices here.

Suffered Eczema Fifty Years—Now Well.

Seems a long time to endure the awful burning, itching, smarting, skin disease known as "tetter"—another name for Eczema. Seems good to realize, also, that Dr. Hobson's Eczema ointment has proven a perfect cure.

Mrs. D. L. Kenny writes:—"I cannot sufficiently express my thanks to you for your Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment. It has cured my tetter which has troubled me for over fifty years." All druggists, or by mail, 50c. Pfeiffer Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo., Philadelphia, Pa.

OLD HUNTER RECITES TALE

Habits of Elk and Their Exciting Chases Told at North Powder.

The following story taken from the North Powder News, is a tale of an elk hunter such as one's grandfathers were familiar with and which was many times enacted in this country before the population became thicker.

Captain W. F. Haines, who crossed the plains in 1875, relates the following account of an elk hunt:

September 1, 1876, old John Powell, an old time hunter, said to me: "On this day the elk begin to whistle." "How do they whistle," said I. He picked up a .44 caliber cartridge, put it up to his mouth, and blew in it as long as he could hold his breath, and said: "That is the kind of a noise they will make, about daylight, generally. About sunset on a hot day this time of the year the same old buck will go to a mountain spring or mud hole high up in the mountains, where he will wallow like a hog." When I told James A. Pugh and my oldest son, 18 years old, old John Powell's story, they were very anxious for a hunt. On September 3 we fenced out grain stacks and on the 4th we packed three horses and started, reaching Anthony creek lakes about 4 o'clock, where we ate lunch. Jim and Willy, went up the mountain, while I and the dog, Rover, went down on a little meadow, 2 miles from camp. I saw a black spot 6 feet across. That was a wallow. I sat down on a big rock with the gun on my lap. In about 20 minutes I heard a dead pine limb break. I got the direction and saw Rover anxiously looking the same way. I thumped him with my gun to keep him quiet. Another limb broke. In two minutes more out into the little meadow within fifty steps of me came a big buck elk in a haist walk, going straight for the mud hole, 60 yards away. I wanted him to stop, so I could shoot, and thought sure he would do so, but he turned and walked back in a faster gait to within 20 feet of the thick woods, when I shot him close to the heart. He turned toward me two jumps when Rover got between me and the elk and then it ran through the wallow. When a quarter of a mile off, Rover barked and I ran to within 40 yards of him, when he turned to run. I shot him within four inches of where the first bullet took effect. About 30 yards further on Rover grabbed him by the leg and was horned off. I shot the third time, striking him in the heart and ran up and shot him in the back of the head, then cut his throat and cut off half of his ear and put it into my pocket to show the boys, if I ever got to camp, which I did at 10 o'clock. "Ah, boys, I am it; here's 6 inches of his ear—over half of it—and his horns have six points and will weigh 75 pounds." Willy said: "That's my luck; now pap will go home in the morning. 500 pounds of meat is more than we can pack home and with the camp, too."
