WOOL NETS GOOD PRICE.
More Than 15 Cents Realized by Wallowa People.

Wool, which was consigned to a Boston house from Wallowa county early in the season has been sold at good prices, according to late advices from the east, says the Enterprise Record Chief. It was practically all fine wool and it netted the growers over 15 cents a pound, nearly 2 cents more than was paid for wool bought outright here in the county.

The fortunate growers were Jay H. Dobbin, Fred W. Falconer, C. B. Daugherty and N. C. Longfellow. Their clips aggregated about 275,000 pounds. C. L. Tartshorn's and Ramsey & Moxley wool, also consigned, has not got on the market yet.

Early in the season the growers and the eastern wool houses were all at sea. They did not know what price would prevail, and they feared a decided slump from last year's prices because of the tariff talk. Frank A. Clarke, representing Hallowell, Jones & Donald, and the growers discussed the situation and some of the largest sheepmen concluded it better to consign their wool than to try to sell it in the uncertain market. The Boston merchants got the consent of the growers to sell when, in their judgment, the proper price was reached.
