"THE REFORMERS,"

OR

THE LOST ART OF MINDING ONE'S BUSINESS

Behold in this Film the Uplift, a peculiarity of the human species. Quite convinced that all that is, is wrong, forth to the Uplift he minds Everybody's business but his own, until that business is as clean, pure and spotless as himself. Verily in these later days is there no school of art named "Minding One's Business?"

Ground to Pieces.

Pendleton, Sept. 11.—Dr. H. S. Garfield, county coroner, and W. H. Judd, undertaker for John S. Baker, went down to Umatilla yesterday to look after a dead man found just below the town, ground to pieces by a passing train. From the information received here over the telephone this morning, the man was a stranger, fairly well dressed, and did not resemble the typical hobo though it is possible he might have been trying to beat a train and fell off, or he might have been struck by the train while walking on the track, or might have been struck on the head and the body thrown on the track. All that is positively known is that the body was found badly mutilated and it is up to the coroner to solve the mystery. Identification is extremely difficult owing to the condition of the body.

"Uncle Joe" Would Return.

Washington, Sept. 11.—That "Uncle Joe" Cannon, former speaker of the house, is weary of the calm of private life and is taking steps to return to congress, was the word received here from Danville, Ills., Cannon's home town. Other Illinois republicans formerly in the "old guard" are also said to be seeking another chance.

TRUE MEASURE OF CIVILIZATION.

I warn my countrymen that the great recent progress made in city life is not a full measure of our civilization, for our civilization rests at bottom on the wholesomeness, the attractiveness and the completeness, as well as the prosperity of life in the country. The men and women on the farms stand for what is fundamentally best and most needed in our American life. Upon the development of country life rests ultimately our ability, by methods requiring the highest intelligence, to continue to feed and clothe the hungry nation; to supply the city with fresh blood, clean bodies and clear brains that can endure the terrific strain of modern life. We need the development of men in the open country who will be in the future as in the past the stay and strength of the nation.—Theodore Roosevelt.

PEACE.

If a thousandth part of what has been expended in war and preparing its mighty engines had been devoted to the development of reason and the diffusion of Christian principles, nothing would have been known for centuries past of its terrors, its sufferings, its impoverishment, and its demoralization but what was learned from history.—Horace Mann.

Were half the power that fills the world with terror. Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts. Given to redeem the human mind from error. There were no need of arsenals or forts.—Longfellow.

DRESS AND WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

To me the fashions of today ought to convince any one that a woman is not fit to vote. Some women's dress is not only extreme; it is objectionable. Woman would do more good by correcting the dances in our cafes and cabarets than in running for office. If I were in a suffragist state I would certainly cast my vote, because I would consider that a duty. But I have always announced that I was not for suffrage. I do not say that women should be tied down to the home, but I think there are many things they might do without actually breaking into politics. Mr. Marshall is more of a suffragist than I am. The women in the east are not strongly in favor of the ballot, and none of the cabinet women seems to favor it, with the exception, perhaps, of the president's daughter, Miss Jessie Wilson.—Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall.

Appropriate.

"What do you think would be a present to give a lawyer friend?" "Why not a new suit?"—Baltimore American.

The important thing in life is to have a great aim and to possess the aptitude and perseverance to attain it.—Goethe.

TWO PRIZE ORATIONS.

All That Remain of the Many Works of Elijah Kellogg.

Generation after generation of our American schoolboys have declaimed "Spartacus to the Gladiators" or "Regulus to the Carthaginians" and probably never stopped to wonder what stenographer among the ancients took down these celebrated remarks. As a matter of fact, both were the work of a New England clergyman, Elijah Kellogg. "Spartacus" was written while he was a young theological student at Andover in 1842 for the rhetorical exercises of his class. "Regulus" was written three years later for a fellow student to speak in a prize competition.

What college youth of these days could write such forceful orations? These have never been surpassed, and in some schools it has become necessary to bar them from the list at prize speaking competitions, so invariably do they carry off the prizes.

Of all the work of Elijah Kellogg these alone remain known. Yet he wrote thirty wholesome books for boys, some of them tales of the woods and some of school, and was for years an eloquent pastor at the Seaman's church in Boston. He might have become a Talmage or a Beecher or a Brooks and gained fame in a more fashionable pulpit, but clung to the life work he had chosen.—Detroit Free Press.

Scorpion Stings Woman.

Hood River, Ore., Sept. 10.—While sorting out garments that had been brought from the summer camp of the family, Mrs. W. J. Baker was stung in the hand by a scorpion, and medical attention had to be secured to reduce the swelling of the hand. It is supposed that the scorpion was brought in from the camp on the lake branch of Hood River. While in camp Mrs. Baker's son, William Baker, killed a scorpion.

Man Bounced From Auto.

Corvallis, Ore., Sept. 10.—With a badly scratched face and probably a fracture at the base of the skull, Frank Lawrence lies at the Corvallis hospital in a precarious condition. Lawrence was riding in a bed extension on an auto driven by Ed Williams. In crossing a bridge at good speed, Lawrence bounced out, landing on his head.

Wife Tired of Heavy Work.

Baker, Sept. 11.—Margaret Moll wants a divorce from Charles D. Moll. Her complaint was filed Wednesday. In it she alleges that she and her spouse were married at Geneva, Neb., May 3, 1906. She alleges that her husband compelled her to do heavy farm work, such as stacking hay, and putting it in the mow, burning brush and other laborious duties. The plaintiff asks for $150 attorneys' fees, $100 suit money, and $25 a month for her support during the hearing.

Rats Attack Children.

Los Angeles, Sept. 11.—Their faces and arms lacerated by the teeth of giant rats that infest the part of the city in which they live, Leona Linsberg, aged 9, and her sister, Viola, aged 6, were today treated at the receiving hospital here. The children were attacked while they were asleep.

Saves Stranger From Drowning.

Portland, Sept. 11.—Leaping from the Broadway bridge into the Willamette river, a distance of 75 feet, W. Manning, a city fireman, saved David Turner from drowning. Turner had fallen into the water from a dock and was sinking for the third time when Manning came to the rescue. He was brought to shore with difficulty.

Well to Do Indian in Need.

Aberdeen, Wash., Sept. 11.—Although Joseph Capoeaman, a full blood Quinault Indian is worth at least $8,000, he is forced to seek relief from the government in order to send his wife, who is dying from tuberculosis, to a sanatorium. Capoeaman is restrained from selling his land on the Quinault Indian reservation by government order. A telegram sent to the Indian department and the congressional delegation was unavailing.

There is promise of oil in the reservation, says the Indian department's reply, and the Great White Father will guard his children's interests closely until such time as the oil theory is proved or exploded.

Charlton Writing Play.

Como, Italy, Sept. 11.—Porter Charlton, the young American soon to be tried here on a charge of wife murder, has been writing a play. He would not reveal the plot but persons who have talked with him concerning it say it will be based on his own experience.

Cottage Grove Work On.

Cottage Grove, Ore., Sept. 10.—The work has begun on the new steel bridge across the Coast fork on Ninth street. Gravel has been hauled to the site of the concrete piers and work has been commenced. The steel spans are under course of construction at Portland, and will arrive in time to complete the job within the 60 days allowed for the work.
