HEAVY FROSTS AT LADD CANYON

FROST AT LADD CANYON DESTROYS GARDENS.

Opening of School in This Section Is Delayed One Week.

Ladd Canyon, Sept. 11.—(Special)—We have had very heavy frosts here the last two nights, but the frost of last night did the most damage, freezing all the gardens which were not protected from the cold. It is not thought that the grain is harmed.

School would have opened Monday, as did the town schools, but the teacher, Mr. Hunt, was delayed in getting here on account of his residence burning down, some place in Washington. Mr. Hunt and family are in La Grande now and are trying to rent a house in this neighborhood in order to be close to school, which will likely open next Monday, with a large enrollment.

Mrs. James Mulholland is spending the week at Island City, taking care of her daughter, Mrs. Alec Ferguson and infant son. The little one was born Monday, September 8, weighing seven pounds. Both mother and baby are getting along nicely.

Little Helen Peebles went to Enterprise a week ago to visit her sister, Mrs. Charles Dougherty, and writes that she is having a fine time.

Mrs. Henry Peebler and Mrs. Dick Peebler drove out in the valley Sunday and spent the afternoon with Mrs. Mabel McCallister.

A Haunted Library.

One of the most curious "hauntings" occurs in a northern castle of great antiquity where Mary, queen of Scots, rested when she was being conveyed a prisoner through England. It is manifested in the library and takes the form that the books cannot be kept in order. They move about or are moved about from shelf to shelf. If you arrange the works of Shakespeare in correct order on one shelf, by next morning the volumes are scattered anyhow on different shelves. This has gone on for years. At different times the library has been searched and locked, watches have been set all night, servants have come and gone, but the mysterious occurrence goes on and is vouched for not only by the family, but by the guests who have stayed in the house. There is no legend to account for it.—London Mail.

China Decoration at Limoges.

Decoration of china has been reduced to an art in Limoges. The processes of lithographing and decalcomania have replaced all hand painting, except for rich decorations and special orders. Another process is that of applying soft underglaze colors so as to produce fine effects, and it is probable that very soon the leading styles of the best classes of goods will be decorated in this manner. The large manufacturers make their own decalcomania sheets, work out their designs and control their decorations. They employ girls to apply the decalcomania lithographs on the china. After the paper has been removed therefrom the articles are fired in the "moules" to set the colors.

She Knew.

"Miss Janet is a long time coming down," he said to the pretty parlor maid. "Perhaps she is—ha, ha—perhaps she is making up her mind whether to see me or not."

The maid smiled coldly. "No," she said; "it is not her mind she is making up."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SHE LIKED SAILING.

So the Wise English Spinster Lived Up to Her Contract.

The following true tale is a most curious instance of living well on nothing a year without breaking the laws of the land. Many years ago a steam packet company of Liverpool wished to buy a piece of land which was owned by a "stay at home spinster," as her neighbors described her. She sold her land at a very low price, but insisted upon a clause being inserted in the agreement giving her the right at any time during her life to travel with a companion in any of the company's vessels.

When the agreement was closed she sold her furniture and went on board the first outgoing ship belonging to the packet company. For years this wise spinster lived nearly all the time upon one ship or another, frequently accompanied by a companion, according to the agreement. This was always a person who otherwise would have been a regular passenger, but who purchased her ticket at reduced rates by paying the spinster instead of the packet company. The company offered her more than twice the value of the land if she would give up her privilege, but this she would not do. Her reply was, "You got the land cheap, and I like sailing, so we both should be satisfied."

TENNYSON AND SCOTT.

Why the One Did and the Other Didn't Accept the Laureateship.

When Sir Walter Scott was offered the laureateship in 1813 he declined the post because, as he wrote to Lady Abercorn, "the necessity of writing odes twice a year is a difficulty which no one ought to encounter who has any poetical character to lose: at least I am sure I should find it insupportable. The thing might be easily done in a decent sort of way as old Whitehead himself describes it:

"Whose muse obliged by sack or peasant, Without a subject or invention, Must certain words in order set As innocent as a gazette. Must some half meaning half disguise And utter neither truth nor lies."

Tennyson received the letter offering him the laureateship one morning before he was out of bed. On rising he immediately wrote two replies, one accepting, the other declining the offer, and determined to consult with his friends at dinner which to tend. Ever afterward he would jokingly declare that he accepted the honor because Venables assured him that if he became laureate he "would always, when dining out, be offered the liver wing of a fowl."—London Chronicle.

Deception of Truth.

Bismarck boasted that he deceived the whole world by telling the truth. It is thus that the simple defeat the clever, but without intending it.—Westminster Gazette.
