COUNCIL MAY GOVERN PLAY

NEW VENTURE IN SCHOOL LIFE IS FORMING.

Ray Couch to Be First Captain Under New Regulations.

Through reorganization of the manner in which athletics are handled in high school circles of La Grande, is under way. An athletic council composed of two faculty members, two students and one school director member is to have full and complete swing of all athletics in the high school, according to a plan that has been put up to the student body and which has the endorsement of a great many people closely connected with the management of the school. The election of a football captain was so urgent at this time that a choice was expressed on Thursday evening, but the election of a manager from the student ranks, is to come shortly when the very best man has been agreed upon. While the athletic council scheme has not been rounded out to complete form, there seems no question but that it will come in due time. The students are almost to a man in favor of the plan.

This council will absolutely control athletics. The student manager, it is proposed, shall handle all student activities and be subservient to the athletic council, representing the final court of appeals in athletic affairs. The qualifications from an academic standpoint will of course depend largely upon the decree of the faculty itself, but games and their management fall upon the council. As drafted, the student manager will be elected in such a way and time that the fall games can be scheduled during the summer when games should be scheduled. Briefly, all matters pertaining to athletics will come before the council. J. E. Reynolds a member of the school board who has been at the head of the committee on athletics for the board, is enthusiastic about the plan and thinks that it will work out to the greatest satisfaction.

Ray Couch is captain of the 1913 football team. His election came last Thursday evening and is genuinely popular. Couch belonged to the crack team of two years ago and developed into as good a forward pass receiver as a high school student usually becomes, and has a well-grounded knowledge of the game. He matriculates next Monday and from then on, football spirit will be kindled with renewed vigor. The selection of a manager has been postponed until the athletic council scheme is thoroughly organized.

Draft and adoption of a set of athletic rules for all high schools of eastern Oregon that will be of value and not a set of jokes as were those which prevailed four or five years ago, has been taken up by all the leading high schools of eastern Oregon. A meeting will be called in a few days when these matters will be threshed out. A set of rules to govern and a set of rules that can, and may, be forced, is the object in view. The ones adopted four years ago and partially adhered to for a year, were farcical in the extreme and after one year became void because only one or two institutions lived up to them and paid the annual dues. It did not carry the 21 year rule, and was vague in its wording as to academic requirements. That the 21 year rule will be embraced is generally admitted by those who have followed developments of the new organization, for without the rule, nine-tenths of the schools are handicapped. High school sport is for boys, not men, and to pit men against youngsters of the ages that almost invariably prevail in high school life now days, is preposterous, of course. The schools of eastern Oregon could take no step that would so please those to have the best interests of each school at heart, as to draw up a simple set of rules that can not be misinterpreted, can be enforced and contain the 21 year clause and the strongest requirements in academic work.

BIG EASTERN GAMES SLATED

POLO GROUNDS TO SEE TWO GAMES THIS YEAR.

Season Opens In "Big League" on September 24 This Year.

For the first time in several seasons two of the best college eleven's will clash at the Polo grounds, New York, when Dartmouth and the Carlisle Indians play on Saturday, Nov. 15, the same date that Yale and Princeton meet in their annual gridiron battle at New Haven. Dartmouth has risen steadily in the football world until the Green Mountain boys are just as formidable as the eleven's of the Big Four.

Harvard has dropped Dartmouth this season principally because the New Hampshire team gave the Crimson too tough a battle on the eve of the Yale-Harvard game. Instead, Harvard has taken on Cornell, a team which will not give the Cambridge eleven so much trouble.

The season has many attractive features, and the games at Princeton, New Haven, and Cambridge are sure to attract large crowds. The first big game of the season will be played on Nov. 1, when Cornell meets Harvard at Soldiers field, in Cambridge.

On Nov. 8 Harvard will play Princeton in Jungletown, and on the following Saturday, Nov. 15, Yale and Princeton will play at New Haven. The Yale-Harvard game will be played at the Stadium, in Cambridge, on Nov. 22. On Thanksgiving day, the annual Cornell-Penn game will be played at Philadelphia. On the Saturday following this the Army and Navy classic will be played at Franklin field, and this game will mark the close of the football season.

Yale is the first of the big college teams to open the season, the Blue clashing with Wesleyan at New Haven on Wednesday, Sept. 24. The season will be in full blast on Saturday, Sept. 27, when all the big eleven's will get under way. Yale playing Holy Cross, Harvard playing Maine, and Princeton clashing with Rutgers.

The West Point team. The Army team will also open the season on this date, playing Norwich at West Point. The Navy opens the season on the following Saturday, with the University of Pittsburgh. The Army, after several years of defeat by the Navy, is going to follow a new policy next season, and there are few hard games on the soldiers' schedule. A new feature of the Army's schedule will be a game on Nov. 1 with Notre Dame.

The Yale schedule this year is not especially hard, although the Elis will get a hard preliminary tryout with such teams as Lafayette, Lehigh, Washington and Jefferson, and Brown. Harvard will have Cornell, Brown and Princeton as important opponents before the final game with Yale.

The Carlisle Indians, as usual, will have the toughest schedule of any of the college teams, and Glen Warner's eleven this season will be without the services of the great Jim Thorpe. The Indians play Cornell at Ithaca on Oct. 11, Pennsylvania on Oct. 25, Dartmouth at the Polo grounds on Nov. 15, and Brown at Providence on Thanksgiving day.

Pennsylvania has tried to schedule games with some of the large teams, but has not been able to interest Yale, Harvard or Princeton. Pennsylvania will play Dartmouth at Franklin field on Nov. 8, the same day that Harvard plays Princeton.

Each Saturday during the fall season will see all the teams in action, and with the rules in their present satisfactory shape, gridiron sages look for a very successful season. Last season's revision made the game as safe and sane as it is possible to make such a vigorous sport, and very few serious injuries or fatalities resulted.

Uncle Sam's Boy Athletes. Athletics are booming in the United States. With over 14,000 school and college athletes competing to date in public, it is shown what a truly magnificent reserve Uncle Sam has to draw from for future Olympic games. Each one is spurred toward this possible goal, and in an age when publicity of any kind is the one "star in sight" it can readily be imagined what is the result.
