Cove "Brushes Up."

The little city of Cove, just nine miles northeast of Union is brushing up through its Commercial club and proposes to secure a place in the public eye, if possible, editorially says the Union Republican. Cove deserves more of publicity than it receives owing to its prominence as a fruit growing and farming section, and if its Commercial club and citizens will be awakened to the opportunity it will be possible to give the place the publicity it deserves. There are few communities more favorably located than is the Cove section, but in order to bring its good points before the general public, the business men and people of the Cove country must organize for effective work. The desirable things in this life come generally to those who go after them.

Bishop Visits Union.

Bishop Paddock, of the Episcopal church, conducted the funeral service over the remains of Thos. Brien de Derocher Sunday last, coming from Hood River, for the purpose, Rector Rev. Powell, of Cove, being ill. The service was beautiful and impressive. Union Republican.

Fine Grain Prospects.

A. J. Goodbrod has examined the grain prospects of this locality quite thoroughly this fall and is of the opinion that this section will produce some of the finest grain ever grown in the valley. The highland grain, he says is especially fine. The threshers are just getting busy, and it will soon be known just how good the crop is.—Union Republican.
